REED AND MARTINE, NEW SENATORS, ASK FOR EXTRA SESSION

Missourian and New Jersey Members Favor Carrying Out Will of the Voters Without Delay.

FIGHT ON IN HOUSE AND IN MAINE LEGISLATURE

Shall tariff reform be postponed until 1912?
Shall reduction of the cost of living be postponed until 1912?

United States Senators-elect Reed of Missouri and Martine of New Jersey have joined in the public demand, voiced by the Post-Dispatch and the New York World, for a special session of Congress to bring immediate reduction in the tariff and the cost of living.

Missouri's newly-elected Senator, reply ing Friday from Kansas City to a telegram of inquiry from the Post-Dispatch, said:

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

An evil cannot be eradicated too soon. We ought to get to work. I favor an extra session. JAMES A. REED.

New Jersey's Senator-elect was the Democratic nominee in a State primary, and his election, over the opposition of party bosses, was brought about by the vigorous support of Gov. Woodrow Wilson. In reply to a dispatch, he sent the following message:

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I FAVOR the calling of an extra session to reform and reduce the tariff—to place foods on the free list. I believe that when the people voted for a change in November, they were largely prompted to do so because they knew that something was radically wrong. They believed that the cost of living had been made too high and they held the Republican party responsible for the condition.

That the people sought to have the cost of living reduced, I am firmly convinced. And they wanted it reduced at once. That means NOW, not a year, nor two years from now. This is no time for cowards or doubters. The Post-Dispatch and New York World deserve praise for their campaign for an extra session. JAMES E. MARTINE.

Randell Tells Republicans What New Democratic Congress Would Do

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—For the first time since the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and the New York World voiced the sentiment of the people that the election of last November was a mandate for an immediate reduction in the tariff and the cost of living, the question has been brought up in Congress.

Representative Choice B. Randell of Texas, who will be a member of the next Ways and Means Committee, which must originate tariff legislation, made a speech yesterday on the floor of the House of Representatives that has aroused all the statesmen and even the politicians.

Points to People's Verdict.

Randell declared that the verdict of the people last November was for revision of the tariff downward at once. Particularly as to the necessities of life, said Randell, was immediate revision demanded.

While his challenge was particularly addressed to the Republicans, Randell did not confine his remarks to the members of that party. He reminded the members of his own party, the Democrats, that the people of the country would not view with patience any delay in carrying out the demands that the party had made.

"On Dec. 5, 1910, the first day of the session," said Randell, "I introduced a bill to change the date of the regular annual session of Congress, providing that Congress shall assemble in regular session once every year, and such meetings shall be on the 4th day of March, instead of the first Monday in December. This bill was referred to the Committee on Judiciary and ordered to be printed, but it has not been reported back to the House.

Power to Set Meeting Date.

"Congress has several times by law appointed a day for the meeting. The present Congress has full power to change the date for next session, and the President can call an extraordinary session. It is clear to the mind of any dispassionate man that there should be no unnecessary delay on the part of Congress in carrying out the will of the people as clearly expressed at the last election."

At this point Hill of Connecticut and Burke of Pennsylvania interrupted Randell and insisted or knowing the specific work he expected the new Congress to do and what he understood the instructions of the people to be as indicated by the last election. Randell replied:

"I think that the people meant that it was time for them to take charge of their own Government again.

"I think they meant that the Republican party had proven false to its promises. I think they meant that the Republican party, while it promised to revise the tariff and to revise it in the interest of the people, had failed to do so.

"As to what we can do, we will see whether or not we can reduce the price of food where that price is increased by law.

Pledges Cheaper Necessities.

"We will endeavor to give the people an opportunity for cheaper clothing, especially the poorer people, where the price is enhanced by law.

"We will endeavor to give free lumber so that the people can build their homes, as they cannot do now.

"We will endeavor to decrease the price of living where the increased ex-

SHE SELLS FALSE HAIR

First Meeting in Department Store Attended by Chilling Incidents.

Charles E. Ruhlmann, former proprietor of the South Side Hotel, Broadway and Pestalozzi street, fell in love with a girl he had never seen, corresponded with, heard described or seen a photograph of. He is going to marry her next Tuesday.

Fate recently caused Ruhlmann to be a visitor at the home of Mrs. Minnie Koch, Tower Grove and Flad avenues. Mrs. Koch is the mother of five children. Ruhlmann, who is 38 years old, had not seen her before. He greeted the matron in this rather unusual fashion:

"You will pardon me, Mrs. Koch, but I cannot help telling you that I have been in love for years with a girl of my dreams that is a picture of what you must have been when you were in your teens. I'm afraid there is not another such in the world."

"Oh, you're mistaken about that!" laughed Mrs. Koch, "I have a 19-year-old sister that my parents say is the picture of what I was when I was 19."

Cupid at Hair Counter.

"If that is so," rejoined Ruhlmann, "I am going to marry her."

Mrs. Koch showed him the picture of her sister, Miss Cecilia Falkenrath of 3117 Alfred street. Ruhlmann declared that it was the exact image of the girl whom he had seen for years through his soul's eye. He said he wanted to commence his suit for her hand immediately.

"All right," said Mrs. Koch, "you'll find her at a downtown dry goods store, selling hair."

It was a busy day at the department store when Ruhlmann called. Furthermore, he had forgotten the realistic name of the ideal of his dreams. In embarrassment he told a saleswoman that he was "looking for a sister of Mrs. Minnie Koch." Then as he saw her smile he added:

"Never mind, I have forgotten her name and I never saw her, but I would know her among a million. I'll find her if she's here."

Reception Was Chilly.

She was there and Ruhlmann found her. But the first words she spoke, Ruhlmann says, almost chilled his heart.

"Oh, yes," said Miss Falkenrath, "my sister told me yesterday how oddly you had acted. You'll have to excuse me. I'm very busy. Good-by."

"I'll call for you this evening," Ruhlmann called to the fleeting vision of his dreams. Before the evening was over the hotel keeper and his dream girl had come to be a better understanding. Within two weeks they were engaged to be married.

Besides having poetic inclinations, Ruhlmann has a strong economic sense. As he is to be married at the Holy Family Catholic Church, it was necessary that the banns be published on three successive Sundays. The third Sunday for Ruhlmann and Miss Falkenrath is Jan. 29. This just lets him in on the winning side of bets that he had made that he would be married in the month of January.

After their marriage Ruhlmann and his bride will travel extensively before returning to St. Louis.

MEN ARRESTED AND PHOTO OF PAGE FROM MAGAZINE USED IN FARO GAME SWINDLE

The large picture is a reproduction of a photograph inserted in the Metropolitan Magazine for November, 1910, and of the title heading for the article, which did not appear in the publication originally. The pages were fastened in to aid in the deception of the swindlers' gambling victims. The smaller portraits are police photographs of Denton and his partner Diehr.

BLACK HAND FOE UNDER HEAVY GUARD IN COURT

Four policemen guarded Tony Lorenzo closely, but in spite of them he shivered with fright in Judge McQuillin's court Friday.

Since Dec. 29 Lorenzo has been staying at the Mounted District Police Station, in Forest Park, a voluntary prisoner, sleeping in a cell there at night, not daring to venture beyond the grounds by day, fearing that if he got out of reach of the protecting arm of the law he would be killed by the Black Hand.

It was this same fear that chilled his heart Friday as he sat in the courtroom, where Sam Ross and Tony Clark, were to go to trial on charges of attempting to extort money from him by black hand letter said, his store would be blown up by dynamite.

When Capt. O'Brien of the Mounted District sent Lorenzo to court Friday morning he detailed Sergt. Dempsey and Patrolmen McVey, Winkle and Anderson as a bodyguard.

Held Them Responsible.

"This man is scared almost to death and I believe he has reason to be," the Captain told them, and added that he would hold them responsible if anything happened to Lorenzo.

And so, all the morning Lorenzo sat within the circle of policemen and cowered, with his elbows on his knees, the top of his head peeping over the shoulder of a policeman, as his frightened eyes roved over the crowd in the courtroom, peering into every new face that came in the door.

Fifteen feet in front of him sat Ross and Carlo, apparently unconcerned, with legs crossed, showing bright green stockings of silk, their hair combed in the jaunty fashion of Dago Hill, and displaying new tan overcoats and the raddest of red neckties.

Once when Ross got up to get a drink of water Lorenzo saw him, and he reached out a trembling right hand and quickly grasped the arm of Sergt. Dempsey and cringed deeper into his chair.

At another time, when Sergt. Dempsey started toward the Sheriff to speak to him, Lorenzo clung to his elbow with both hands and went with him.

Feared Attack in Court.

Lorenzo speaks little English, but through an interpreter he said Friday that he knew the Black Hand would kill him sooner or later, and he feared attack in the courtroom.

Lorenzo had a small grocery store in what is known as Dago Hill, in southwest St. Louis, at 3332 Pattison avenue. Early in December he began getting letters signed by the Black Hand telling him to take $300, go to Broadway and Market street at 9 o'clock at night and walk south from there. When he met a man with a basket on his left arm, he was to drop the money in the basket and walk on. If he failed to do it, the letter said, his store would be blown up by dynamite.

He paid no attention to the letters and the threats, and the night of Dec. 29 his store was blown up with dynamite. The next day he got a letter, which said:

"You thought we wouldn't, but we showed you. Now you must give up the money or we will kill you."

It was then that Lorenzo went to the Police Station and begged to be taken in and locked up. He has been there ever since.

It is alleged that Ross and Carlo tried to carry on negotiations between Lorenzo and the members of the Black Hand Society.

MAID, SUING HER MISTRESS, TELLS OF HAIR PULLING

Mrs. E. S. Gempp of 3146 South Grand avenue, wife of a wealthy wholesale liquor dealer, was named as defendant in a suit for $500 damages filed in Justice Grassmuck's court Thursday by Mary Anna Feldman, formerly a servant in the Gempp home. She alleges that Mrs. Gempp beat her and pulled out her hair.

Mr. and Mrs. Gempp went to Europe 18 months ago and they brought Mary Anna Feldman back with them and took her to their home. They employed her as a maid.

"In her petition, filed by Attorney E. A. Hausman, Miss Feldman says that three weeks ago Mrs. Gempp reproached her for not washing the dishes. Miss Feldman says she had been busy taking care of the children, and that as there were three other maids in the house, she told Mrs. Gempp she did not think she should be required to do all of the work.

Threatened to Talk.

Miss Feldman then demanded $57.50, which she said was due her. She admits that when Mrs. Gempp told her she would not pay her until the month was out, she became angry and said:

"If you don't pay me now, I'll tell people things about you."

Other servants interfered and stopped the fight.

Mrs. Gempp told a Post-Dispatch reporter the accusations were untrue. She said the $57.50 was paid. She said the maid and attorney offered to settle the matter rather than to take it into the courts. Mrs. Gempp also said the suit was brought to humiliate her by notoriety.

M'CURDY READY TO TRY HIS KEY WEST TO HAVANA FLIGHT

Announcement Made When Wind at Both Ends of Route Is 12 Miles an Hour.

KEY WEST, Fla., Jan. 27.—Aviator McCurdy declared this morning he would attempt his flight to Havana at 2 p. m. Preparations for the start were at once begun.

McCurdy made the announcement when the weather conditions continued to improve. The wind at Havana was 12 miles an hour, the same rate recorded here. The torpedo boat destroyer Paulding left the wharf to test conditions further out. If they were found to be favorable, a wireless message was to be sent back to McCurdy.

PLANNED 8 MONTHS TO GET $15,000 BY FAKE FARO SWINDLE

Police Declare Men Posing as Syndicate Controlling New York Gambling Got the Money From Martin Fellhauer and Were After $30,000 From Dr. O. S. Miller.

SCHEME WAS TO SIGNAL VICTIM ON HIGH CARD

Saloon Owner Bet on Ace, Low in Faro, and Lost Money—Trap Set for Men and Police Make Two Arrests at Hotel Jefferson—Other St. Louisans Swindled by Gamblers.

Sure-thing gamblers, posing as magazine writers and reformers, eager to initiate St. Louis capitalists into the mysteries and secrets of faro and similar games, planned here for eight months to get $15,000 from Martin Fellhauer, proprietor of a string of St. Louis saloons. They were captured when they attempted to get $30,000 from Dr. Orion S. Miller, an osteopath, who has offices in the Frisco Building.

They were arrested at the Jefferson Hotel Thursday night after Dr. Miller had kept an appointment with them. He previously had notified the police and detectives were waiting for the confidence men when they attempted to leave the hotel.

Developments following the arrest of these men show that there was a systematic plot to induce St. Louis men to go to New York and play faro with the promised certainty that they would win through secret signals given by the dealer.

Fellhauer Selected.

Fellhauer was picked as a likely victim and two men, said by the police to be the smoothest of confidence operators, were sent here to land him.

The men arrested at the Jefferson Hotel said they were August Diehr of 1153 North Euclid avenue and Charles A. Denton Jr. of 167 West Ninety-eighth street, New York.

Diehr said that Denton was his son. "He has just been using the name Denton since he came to St. Louis," Diehr said. "He doesn't want to be bothered by a lot of people who used to know him here."

Diehr says he has a stock farm at Arlington, Mo., but has been living in St. Louis for more than a year.

Both men deny that they know anything of the reported recent loss of $17,000 in a New York faro game by Sam B. Thompson, son of the late William H. Thompson, president of the National Bank of Commerce and treasurer of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition Co.

Other St. Louisans Swindled by a Syndicate of Eastern Gamblers

It has been a matter of gossip among St. Louis handbook men and curbstone gamblers for several months that St. Louis men were being systematically robbed in New York gambling games.

The name most often mentioned in that connection was that of Martin Fellhauer.

Efforts to induce Fellhauer to tell of his losses were without result. The police were at sea, though they felt sure that two or more high-class confidence men were operating here.

Fellhauer Told Friend.

After keeping silent for three months Fellhauer told his story to James Allen, a friend of Dr. Miller.

He told Allen that he believed he could get his money back from the gamblers if he could induce somebody to go to New York and expose their game.

Allen suggested that Dr. Miller might be induced to do this. It was arranged that Fellhauer and Diehr should go to Dr. Miller's office and talk over Diehr's scheme for getting rich quick.

Dr. Miller posed as a capitalist. He says that Diehr produced a faro box and a blank sheet known as a case card and explained to him all of the intricacies of faro, saying that he had a grievance against the gambling syndicate in New York and was willing to show Miller how the game could be beaten.

He told Dr. Miller that he would let him in on the good thing when Charles A. Denton Jr. came to St. Louis. He described Denton as the head of the gambling syndicate in New York and showed a copy of the Metropolitan Magazine for November, 1910, which, apparently, contained an article by Charles Denton Jr., showing how easy it was for a gambler to win at games of chance.

Told That the Faro Dealer Would Signal When to Bet on High Card

Dr. Miller pretended to be deeply interested in the gamblers' system. Diehr explained that he could not lose if he would watch the dealer. He produced charts to show how the cards would be put in the faro box and how the dealer would signal to Dr. Miller by raising and lowering certain fingers to indicate the card that was about to be taken from the box.

Explains Fellhauer's Mistake.

He told Dr. Miller that this was the same system that had been explained to Fellhauer, but that Fellhauer had lost his money through an unfortunate error. According to the gambler, Fellhauer, accustomed to other card games, thought that the ace was the highest card in the deck. He was told that the dealer would give him a signal when the high card was to be turned. He got the signal, dropping his little finger, and put his money on the ace, which, in faro, is the lowest card in the pack.

Dr. Miller, planning the capture of the gamblers, met Diehr a week ago and gave him the impression that he had about $30,000 to risk at faro.

Diehr said that the entire scheme would be explained when his partner, Charles A. Denton Jr., head of the gambling syndicate, arrived in St. Louis from New York.

Thursday morning Miller received a telephone message asking him when he could meet Diehr and Denton. He made an engagement for 8 p. m. at the Jefferson Hotel.

He at once notified Detective McKenna with whom he had been in touch since the beginning of his negotiations with Diehr.

When Dr. Miller and Diehr met in the hotel lobby the detective was only a few feet away.

BOOK USED TO WIN VICTIMS' FAITH

To win the confidence of their victim the men used what purported to be an article in the Metropolitan Magazine of November, 1910. It was entitled, "How Fortunes Have Been Won at Monte Carlo," and was by Charles A. Denton Jr., "Manager of the Most Exclusive and Wealthiest Clubs in New York State." On the page facing the article was a full-page portrait of Denton, in high hat and frock coat.

Under the portrait he was described as "The successful manager of the largest syndicate of clubs in this country."

The article, however, was not in other copies of the magazine for that month. A close examination revealed the trick that had been played. The two leaves containing the article and portrait of Denton had been skillfully

The inserted pages bore no page numbers, but in size and quality and type were so nearly like the pages of the magazine that no one not looking for a trick would suspect that they did not belong there.

Systems That Won.

After a 15 years' trial of a system which practically consists of betting high enough and long enough, Mr. Huntley Walker has left Monte Carlo £18,000 the richer, says 'Tit-Bits.' He won £6000 one day, and the next day, in a little over two hours, won £12,000 more, which necessitated the table at which he was playing suspending operations for a few minutes, while further funds were obtained. This is technically called 'breaking the bank,' and recalls the feat of the 'Monte Carlo Wells,' the first man to break the bank at the famous gambling resort, who a few years ago won £40,000 from the Casino.

Wells played by a system, and afterward explained how, starting with a certain capital, he bet on "runs" or "series," staking £20 or £480—the minimum or maximum bets.

Five years ago an immensely wealthy American, Col. Power, the owner of mines in Mexico, won £70,000 at the Casino. His first day's play, which lasted less than an hour, brought him in £3760, and each succeeding day had a similar story to tell. Crowds dogged his footsteps whenever he entered the Casino, some of the habitues rubbing his shoulder or surreptitiously the hem of his coat for luck, while the mere rational followed his play. The Colonel did not plunge, but continued to stake the maximum of £480 each time. The result was that he came away richer by £70,000.

A Russian Count once carried away £14,000 as the result of a single night's play, while a North of England shipowner won £8000 in a couple of hours. On another occasion a Yorkshire colliery owner left Monte Carlo, after a three weeks' stay, £15,000 richer than when he went there.

The Winnings of Jaggers.

One of the most remarkable incidents which ever happened at Monto Carlo was when a Mr. Jaggers won £80,000. He kept a close watch over the roulette wheels at the various tables, and discovered that each one had some small defect which resulted in one number winning more frequently than any other. These numbers he backed, winning £120,000. The bank, however, discovered his secret, had new wheels made, and Mr. Jaggers was losing rapidly when he wisely desisted and returned home with £80,000.

But, in spite of all these huge sums which have been won, the bank holds its own against all systems, plungers and persevering gamblers, and, as a witty proverb invented in the days of M. Blanc, the founder of the Casino, truly says: "The black often loses, and red often loses, but white (Blanc) always wins," and his winnings range from £1,000,000 to £1,500,000 every year. Well might one remark that he who breaks the bank today will be broken by the bank tomorrow.

Mr. Denton, manager of some of the most exclusive and wealthiest clubs in the world, states the height of the play in Monte Carlo is small compared with the play here. While the clubs here are not as elaborately furnished as Monte Carlo, nor is the publicity attached to the player, it is a nightly occurrence for a group of our leading financiers to hide away from the outside world behind the closed doors of one of these clubs and while away the time at the height of which would astound the Canfield of years ago.

A certain steel magnate, who lost $20,000 at one evening's play at Monte Carlo, was surprised on his arrival home to learn that the news had preceded him here; where a losing of $100,000 is never mentioned here, outside of the club.

It has been a frequent occurrence for one player winning $35,000 in one roll of the wheel.

Mr. Denton also states that one man high up among the millionaire class made a losing of $200,000 in a New York club at faro in one night's play. It seems almost impossible, but, nevertheless, a truth, that the class of people who patronize clubs here know nothing whatever of gambling, simply want diversion, and are willing to pay for it.

THERE YOU GO AGAIN, MARY; OUR COLISEUM IS A "BARN"

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Miss Mary Garden, not satisfied with the success of her grand opera career, today told of her plans to write a book this summer during her vacation abroad.

Speaking of her recent visit in the West, she said: "I'll never consent to go around the country like prize stock again. Those Minnesota and St. Louis rips are deadly. No civilized community should ask a singer to sing in a barn such as I sang in at St. Louis."

NO WONDER THE RIVER IS LOW

Fisherman Has Taken Out Some Monstrous Mud Cats.

Theodore de Shirley, a Mississippi River fisherman at War Eagle Landing, St. Charles County, thinks he has made the prize catfish catch of the season. He caught in a single day four which aggregated 200 pounds, after being dressed.

When De Shirley took the big fish to St. Charles Thursday to sell them he attracted much attention on the streets. The "mud cat," as it is known to rivermen, is not a game fish, and De Shirley said he had no trouble landing the four. He caught them, he declared, in the course of two hours' fishing.

GIRL WILL WED MAN WHO FIRST SAW HER FACE IN HIS DREAMS

MISS CECILIA FALKENRATH.

A DREAM.

(By Gedicht Von Bodenstedt—English Version, by F. Corder.)

I HAD a wondrous lovely dream;
Methought I woo'd a blue-eyed maid;
We stood beneath the greenwood shade,
When April shed his sunny beam;
The buds did throng, the brooklet gush'd,
Afar we heard the village chime;
Through every vein the rapture flush'd,
We stood entranc'd in bliss sublime.

BUT fairer far than was my dream,
The bliss one waking hour display'd.
We stood beneath the greenwood shade,
When April shed his sunny beam;
The brooklet gush'd, the buds did throng,
And village chimes the breezes bore;
I held thee fast, I held thee long
For fate shall part us nevermore!
nevermore!
O greenwood lit by April beam,
Through life thou wilt abide with me!
Here did the truth a vision seem,
Here was my dream made verity!

BARRY FORCED OUT OF NAVY BY PRESIDENT

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—By direction of the President, Rear-Admiral Edward B. Barry, the former commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet, today submitted his resignation "for the good of the service." It was immediately accepted. The enforced resignation is the outgrowth of charges which have been in circulation affecting the moral character of the naval officer.

Secretary of the Navy Meyer announced that on instructions from the President, he telegraphed last night to Admiral Barry asking that he submit his resignation.

Name Stricken Off.

The resignation, severing the officer's connection with the American Navy after 45 years of active service, was received today and his name was at once stricken from the list of naval officers. This act naturally terminated his salary from the Government.

In response to a telegraphic request, Admiral Barry was placed on the retired list of the navy on Jan. 14, several months in advance of the date on which he would have retired by operation of law. His right to seek voluntary retirement was his privilege under the law permitting such action after 40 years' active service.

Secretary of the Navy Meyer took up the request with the President and it was promptly approved. Later, however, reports began to emanate from San Francisco that Admiral Barry's retirement was forced by a demand that he resign on account of alleged scandalous conduct. It was added that the officers of the cruiser West Virginia, Admiral Barry's flagship, were not satisfied with retirement, but insisted on his resignation.

Report Sent to Taft.

The Secretary of the Navy took cognizance of the reports and called on Capt. Orchard of the West Virginia for a formal statement, meanwhile ordering Admiral Barry to remain in San Francisco until further orders.

Capt. Orchard's report was received by the Navy Department several days ago, when it was submitted to the President, and the enforced resignation followed.

DANVILLE GRAND JURY CALLS REPORTERS, THEN IGNORES THEM

Chicago Newspaper Men Summoned in Vote-Buying Investigation.

DANVILLE, Ill., Jan. 27.—Investigation of traffic in votes in Vermilion County today resulted in the issuance of summonses for all the Chicago newspaper men who are here to cover the story, to appear before the grand jury, supposedly to tell from what source they have obtained the information on which their stories have been based.

Judge Kimbrough said the newspapers "had done a great deal of harm in trying to do good," by publication of the testimony before the grand jury.

Six correspondents waited in the anteroom of the grand jury room for nearly an hour while the inquisitors deliberated, and then went out to luncheon, without calling any of them.

ST. LOUIS LABOR SUIT ARGUED IN SUPREME COURT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Arguments in the contempt and boycott cases of the Buck Stove and Range Co. of St. Louis against the American Federation of Labor were begun today in the United States Supreme Court. This followed the filing yesterday of briefs, in which it was explained that these prosecutions continued, in spite of the fact that the company and the federation were on friendly terms.

The proceedings were made more spectacular than usual by the presence in the courtroom of several officials of the American Federation of Labor. Among these were President Samuel Gompers, Vice-President John Mitchell and Secretary Frank Morrison, all under sentence to jail as an outcome of the controversy in the lower courts.

J. J. Darlington, who appeared for the Bucks' Stove and Range Co., said the boycott had originated as the result of a strike of 40 out of 750 employes of the Bucks' Stove and Range Co. at St. Louis, because a nine-hour day instead of a 10-hour day was refused. He said the employes were paid by the piece and for the company to have acceded to the demand of 40 men would have been to deprive 750 employes of $60,000 in wages annually.

In reality, he told the Court the object of the boycott was to require the company to unionize its shops. Darlington attacked the defense of the American Federation of Labor that the association was not so related to the subordinate bodies as to be responsible for their acts. He declared that the federation instituted boycotts and fined and penalized local organizations if boycotts were not prosecuted in accordance with its orders.

CATLIN GUIDE AT CAMPAIGN DANCES A SOCIAL MENTOR

James E. Fowler Testifies How He Tried to Popularize Aspirant for Congress. DENIES COAT WAS A GIFT

Evidence Is Brought Out in Contest in Progress in Eleventh District.

In the hearing of the contest begun by Congressman Patrick Gill (Dem.) to contest the election of Theron E. Catlin (Rep.) to Congress from the Eleventh District, it was revealed Friday that James E. Fowler acted as a sort of social mentor for Catlin at various popular dances and entertainments held throughout the campaign.

Fowler, who is an excavating contractor, testified that he had known the Catlin family for 21 years and was employed there as a servant for seven years.

Until Theron Catlin made the race for Congress, Fowler declared he had been an unswerving Democrat and had never scratched a Democratic ballot.

Swerves From Democracy.

"But the Catlins were all my friends," he said, "and out of friendship for the family I voted for Theron."

Fowler was asked if he had not put in five weeks prior to the election taking Catlin to dance halls of humble variety in the Eleventh Congressional District. This he admitted.

Fowler added that he had introduced Catlin on these occasions to voters and had tried in every way to popularize the candidacy of the wealthy young lawyer.

"Did you receive any compensation for your services?" Fowler was asked.

"None whatever," he replied.

"Did not Catlin give a very fine overcoat to you after the election?"

"He did not."

At this point Gill's attorney directed attention to an overcoat which Fowler held on his arm. Examination showed that it was a fur-lined coat, seemingly of an imported article.

"Now, didn't Catlin give you that coat?" interrogated the attorney. Again Fowler entered a denial.

Refuses to Tell About Coat.

Fowler refused to answer questions as to where or from whom he had purchased the coat. In response to a question as to whether he feared the answer would incriminate him, Fowler said:

"This is my personal affair and concerns nobody else."

Fowler then acknowledged that he had bet $20 with John Lavin that Catlin would defeat Gill, but denied that he had bet more than this money or that the wager money came from Catlin.

John F. Lazear, a saloon keeper at 5136 Easton avenue, testified before Commissioner Felix O. Poston Friday that on last election day he was standing in front of the polling place in the Thirteenth precinct of the Twenty-sixth Ward when he saw I. J. Wilson, then assistant prosecuting attorney, drive up in a machine and stop at the polling place. Wilson went away soon and returned with Judge Taylor in the machine. He did not hear the conversation between them and did not know the purpose of their visit to the polling place.

John T. Gleason of 4402 St. Louis avenue, who was a judge of election in the Third Precinct of the Twenty-sixth Ward, explained Wilson's presence. He said that Arthur Davis was one of six or seven voters who appeared at the booth at the same time, and that he and William Redding talked over their ballots together, then offered to show them to Wilson, who said he did not care to see them.

Wilson was not a voter in that precinct, Gleason said, but stood at the door of the polling place until the group of men had voted, and left with them.

Failed to Find Janitor Living in Church Basement.

M. S. Prindable of 1526 North Twenty-second street testified Thursday that he failed to find any person living at 2937 Lucas avenue, a church, when he called there. Prindable is a canvasser employed by Gill. Investigation shows that Thomas C. McKeage, the janitor, with his wife and five children, lives in the basement of the church. McKeage said he voted for Catlin, although he is a Democrat.

"I have lived here for four years," McKeage said. "If the canvasser had taken any trouble to walk around to the back of the church he could have found me, without trouble. Many of the members of the church know I have been living here. I voted for Catlin because I got tired of Democratic politics, and I thought he was a good man. I would vote for him again if I had a chance."

Four public school teachers have been subpenaed to testify before John J. O'Brien Saturday relative to the distribution of Catlin flags in the schools. The teachers are Misses Anna K. Kelly of 4700 Page boulevard, Ella M. Brockman of 5200 Cabanne avenue, Edna E. White of 1385 Belt avenue, and Gertrude Hogan of 3837 Page boulevard.

CITY WILL BE DRY ON DAY OF THE CHARTER ELECTION

Excise Commissioner Orders Saloons Closed; Police Will Restrain Clubs.

All saloons will be closed from midnight next Monday to midnight Tuesday, charter election day, according to an order issued Friday by Excise Commissioner Lee. Chief of Police Young, after a consultation with the City Counselor's office, learned that lid clubs, over which the Excise Commissioner has no jurisdiction, may operate open before 5 a. m. and after 7 p. m.

The law provides that no liquor shall be dispensed between those hours on an election day and Chief Young says the police will raid the clubs if they dispose of any liquors.

IDLE MEN INTERRUPT KAISER

BERLIN, Jan. 27.—A large crowd of the unemployed attempted a hostile demonstration in the vicinity of the palace today at a time when Emperor William was transmitting the password to the castle watch.

The manifestants, driven away by the police, marched through the central district of the city, hurling insulting epithets at the officers and shouting "We want work."

CUMMINS SAYS FABRICATION OF WHITE STORY IMPOSSIBLE

On the Contrary, He Declares, Tale of Lorimer Bribery Is Corroborated.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27. — Senator Cummins of Iowa, resuming his argument against the adoption of the committee resolution exonerating Senator Lorimer of Illinois from the charge of having procured his seat by corrupt means, declared today there were many circumstances to sustain the charge.

The Iowa Senator continued his dissection of the testimony. He declared it would have been impossible for the human mind to have fabricated such a story as that supplied to the Chicago Tribune by Representative White of the Legislature, without having it refuted by the facts.

This refutation, he said, had not resulted. On the contrary, many circumstances corroborative of the story had been collected by the committee. These were outlined at length. They include Lee O'Neill Browne's visit to St. Louis and his meeting with White in Chicago and the consequences growing out of those two incidents. Cummins declared that there was not one undisputed item of testimony that was not in harmony with the original White story.

WIDE STREETS AND BIG LOTS CUT ELECTRIC LIGHT PROFIT

Miller Tells Commission Union Electric Has Hard Time Making Dividends.

Testifying before the Public Service Commission Friday, Alten S. Miller, president of the Union Electric Light & Power Co., declared that the company wants to get and retain the good will of the public by giving good service at low rates.

Miller asserted that as the earnings of the company increased, the rates would be modified from time to time.

He said the wide streets in the business section, and the large lots in the residence section, made it impossible, under present conditions, for the company to earn adequate dividends on its investment. In cities where the streets are narrow and homes built on small lots, Miller said, electric lighting companies could operate at a much lower cost.

Miller said the company would spend approximately $13,000,000 in the next ten years to improve its properties and extend its service. Since June, 1909, he said, $784,335 has been spent for new plants and distributing systems, and $621,443.64 in replacements. He estimated that $850,000 would be spent in new construction work during the year, and $260,000 in large replacements.

No Quorum in New York Legislature.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 27.—The ninth ballot for United States Senator today was declared "no choice," owing to the absence of a quorum.

SALOON PORTER PATENTED LAND FOR F. W. KEITEL

OFFICIAL PAID FOR IT

Milliner Declares That She Obtained Tract Free Which Now Is Worth $40,000.

Henry W. Brinkmeyer testified Friday in the Government suit to recover land it values at $2,600,000 from the Yampa Anthracite Coal Co., that when he applied for 160 acres he understood he was doing it for the benefit of F. W. Keitel, a director in the coal concern, and that Keitel paid for it.

Brinkmeyer was the first of the dummy land owners to say that he acted for the company's benefit. The other witnesses had said they got the land for themselves.

Service was obtained on Brinkmeyer in a saloon at Eleventh and Buchanan streets, where he is employed as a porter. His sister married Fred Keitel, father of F. W. Keitel, who promoted the coal company.

Fred took the application papers to Brinkmeyer, he said, and told him if he signed them they might be of future benefit to him. The elder Keitel paid the notary fees, he said, but told him that the land was for F. W. Keitel, and Brinkmeyer signed a paper transferring power of attorney.

Keitel Told of Price.

Subsequently F. W. Keitel told Brinkmeyer, he said, that he had paid $1600 for the land, that being the price at that time. Brinkmeyer's testimony was taken in a deposition in the Federal Building by Assistant District Attorney Ward of Denver, Colo., where the suit was filed. The land involved is located in Routt County, Colo. Keitel and his associates on the directorate of the company, many of them rich St. Louisans, were prosecuted at Denver on charges of conspiring to obtain the land fraudulently, and were acquitted.

Ward failed to obtain service on Harry A. Meyer, who also obtained 160 acres of land. Meyer lives back of 2336 Montgomery street, the home of the Haberbeck family. F. W. Keitel married Selma Haberbeck, and her father, brother, two sisters and brother-in-law got land.

One of the sisters was Miss Magdalena Haberbeck, a milliner, who was on the stand all Thursday afternoon.

Miss Haberbeck testified she applied for 160 acres of coal land in Routt County, Colo., after her brother Gus had acquired a like amount. She said she heard her brother say he had the land and she asked him why she could not get some. She said she asked Keitel if he could get a claim for her and he replied, "I guess I can."

She testified it was agreed that Keitel was to pay for it and she would reimburse him later. She said she had not paid a cent for the land up to the present time. It was developed on cross-examination that this property is now regarded as being worth $40,000.

Signed No Notes.

She declared she had never signed a note to deliver the land to anyone else at any future time, nor had she agreed to do so verbally. She declared her brother was keeping up taxes on the property which, she said, amounted to $40 or $45 a year.

A paper purporting to be an affidavit signed by the witness, her father and her brother, Gus Haberbeck, and bearing date in September, 1907, which recited that the signers applied for the land to accommodate F. W. Keitel, a relative, and not for their own use, was shown her. She identified her signature on the instrument, but declared she signed it without knowing its contents, upon the solicitation of Special Agents Linen and Brennan of the United States Department of Justice.

She declared Linen and Brennan came to their home, represented that the members of the family who had entered the coal lands had perpetrated a fraud upon the Government and were guilty of penitentiary offenses. She said they declared if the family would sign the affidavit everything would be all right, and they would never hear of it again. She said the agents came with the affidavit prepared.

400 BUSINESS MEN LISTEN TO CHARTER TALK

Judge Sale Asks Argument From Those Opposed to Code but No One Accepts.

Four hundred business men attended a noonday charter meeting at the Garrick Theater Friday. Although it had been announced that opponents of the charter would receive a chance to be heard, no one responded when former Judge Moses N. Sale, who was chairman of the meeting, extended an invitation.

When Judge Sale suggested that the 400 voters, who appeared to be all in favor of the charter, go to the polls Tuesday, and use their ballots as a surgeon's knife to cut the cancer out of the body politic of St. Louis, there was loud cheering.

The meeting was called by Judge Sale and other charter advocates to afford business men an opportunity to hear the charter discussed at the noon hour. Judge Sale made a speech strongly advocating the adoption of the charter. He urged the voters not only to go to the polls and vote for it, but to see that their friends and neighbors did likewise.

Hertenstein Speaks.

Charles Hertenstein, president of the Typographical Union of St. Louis, was one of the speakers. Hertenstein said that he did not appear in his official capacity, but as a citizen. He said:

"It has been said by the opposition to the new charter that 40,000 union labor votes will be cast against the new charter and I am here to say to you that this is a miscalculation, so far as my own vote at least is concerned.

"There was a time in labor circles that such a claim as is made by the opposition might have been possible, but I want to say to you now that that day has passed. Organized labor is an intelligent body and it votes that way on questions of this kind, which do not involve labor, but what is best for the common good of the city. Organized labor seeks to uplift, not to tear down.

"There are only two things to be considered: Is the new charter better than the old. If not, vote against it. If it is an improvement even in the slightest degree, if it is to improve the city, then you should vote for it."

Colored Voters for Charter.

A meeting of colored voters Thursday night at True Reformers' Hall was addressed by George B. Webster, George L. Vaughn and the Rev. P. W. Dunnivant. Resolutions against the new charter were adopted.

The Rotary Club, after hearing addresses Thursday from Emil N. Tolkacz and the Rev. W. W. Boyd, adopted resolutions in favor of the charter.

Samuel B. McPheeters, the Rev. Dr. W. C. Bitting and Harry B. Wallace spoke in favor of the charter before the Men's Club of St. John's Methodist Church, South, Thursday night.

Charles W. Bates, former City Counsellor, explained the provisions of the proposed charter before the Alumni Association of the St. Louis University Thursday night.

The St. Louis Architectural Club heard charter addresses Thursday night by Calvin M. Woodward, Roger N. Baldwin and Thomas C. Young.

The Rev. Dr. W. W. Boyd, Eugene Wilson and Thomas D. Cannon gave charter talks at a meeting Thursday night of the Christian Socialist Fellowship Society at the Cabanne Branch Library.

Councilman E. V. P. Schneiderhan and Dwight F. Davis will debate on the new charter at a meeting of Hyde Park Council, Legion of Honor, at Knights of Columbus Hall, Friday night.

The Twenty-first Ward Regular Republican Club will discuss the charter at a meeting Friday evening at Wrausmann's Hall.

WEBSTER DENIES CHARTER SPEECH

Thinks Expert Stenographer Misquoted Him When He Talked to Freeholders.

Sheridan Webster, who made a speech before the Board of Freeholders May 21, 1909, advocating many of the principles of government that were incorporated in the new charter, and who is now one of the leaders in opposing its adoption, told a Post-Dispatch reporter Friday that he advocated then the abolition of the House of Delegates only in connection with the initiative and referendum.

He thinks the stenographer who reported his speech before the Freeholders did not get it all or did not do the work correctly. The statement attributed to him in the report of the speech that power should be concentrated in the Mayor and that he should be given power to discharge any of his appointees just as a business man has, Webster says, is misleading. He says what he did say before the Freeholders is that the people ought to have the power, through the recall, to remove a Mayor or any other public official, just as a business man could discharge a clerk.

He denied also that he advocated a merit system, such as is incorporated in the present charter. With the initiative and referendum, Webster says, he would not care whether the House of Delegates is retained, but without it, he thinks the House ought not to be abolished.

The Freeholders employed expert stenographers to report the speeches of all persons who appeared before them. Soon after the speeches were made they were transcribed and filed among the records. It was in that way, according to the Freeholders, that a copy of Webster's remarks were preserved.

KONDON'S CATARRHAL JELLY

BANK CLOSES FOR LACK OF CASH TO HONOR $117 CHECK

The German-American Bank of Lenzburg, Ill., was closed under a writ of attachment Friday because there were not funds on hand to honor a check for $117.23.

The bank was opened three or four months ago by Oscar L. Lancaster in a room in the rear of Frazier's notion store. The visible assets were a safe, typewriter, an adding machine and a desk. Lancaster announced that he would do a general banking business, and invited deposits.

Dec. 8 William Muser deposited $330. From time to time he drew against it. Thursday he balanced his book and found that he had $117.23 still to his credit. He needed the money, so he drew a check for the amount and presented it at the bank.

Lancaster, who was president, cashier, receiving and paying teller, bookkeeper and office boy, received the check as paying teller, but did not hand over the $117.23. He was sorry, he said, but the bookkeeper had reported to the president that the receiving teller had not turned over to the cashier sufficient funds to enable the bank to honor the check.

Muser went to Belleville and swore out a writ of attachment. Constable Ben Lautz closed the bank and put a watchman in charge. The case will be heard Jan. 31.

Lightning struck the home of City Marshal George P. Weinbrenner, 4234 Safpy avenue, at 8:15 o'clock Friday morning. The family were at breakfast when there was a blinding flash, followed by a loud report.

Investigation disclosed that lightning had struck the chimney and had followed a metal gutter and a water spout to the ground, boring a small round hole through the stone base of the water spout. No other damage resulted.

GRAHAME-WHITE TO START ST. LOUIS AVIATION SCHOOL

If Hangars Are Provided, English Expert Will Teach Flying Here.

St. Louis will have an aviation school next spring with Claude Grahame-White, the famous English aviator, as instructor, if the conditions named in a letter from him to Albert Bond Lambert, president of the Aero Club of St. Louis, are complied with.

Aviators agree that conditions for aeroplane flying in St. Louis are the best in the United States. Grahame-White asks that the Aero Club of St. Louis provide him with five or six hangars for his machines, if he will teach pupils from different parts of the country the art of flying.

In his letter he says he will bring three or four machines and conduct the school all spring. Lambert will present the matter before the members of the Aero Club next Thursday night at the Jefferson Hotel, where the annual meeting will be held.

MRS. SCHENK BELIEVES HER HUSBAND WILL RETURN

By Associated Press.

WHEELING, W. Va., Jan. 27.—Mrs. Laura Farnsworth Schenk, who has been on trial on a charge of poisoning her husband and in whose case the jury yesterday disagreed, today took a hopeful view of the situation. The question of bail probably will be settled during the day.

"I received the keys to my house on the island this morning," Mrs. Schenk said at her cell in the tower, "and the next thing for me to do is to go home and get things in order. After that the other matters will follow. In spite of all that has been said about divorce, I expect John, the children and myself will be together again.

"I never felt better in my life. But I understand some of the Schenk adherents are very bitter because the jury voted eleven to one for acquittal. They should not be angry, for the jurors evidently did what they thought was right. They ought to understand the whole situation now that the public and they know legally I was not guilty of poisoning my husband."

POLICE IN AUTO CHASE BURGLARS; 12 SHOTS FIRED

TELEPHONE BRINGS HELP

Wife Hears Intruder in Beverly Place Home, Arouses G. C. Howes.

Twelve shots were fired by policemen in a midnight chase of two burglars through the Cabanne district, which awakened many persons and caused a great deal of excitement. The men escaped. It is not known whether any of them was struck by the bullets.

The pursuit and bombardment followed an attempt to enter the home of George C. Howes, 15 Beverly place. While Howes was telephoning for policemen, one of the men, who had gained entrance with a skeleton key, slipped out and joined the other, who was acting as lookout. The chase began with the arrival of five policemen in an automobile.

Mrs. Howes was awakened at 11:45 p. m. Thursday by a noise in the second floor hall adjoining her sleeping rooms.

Arousing her husband she said: "George, there's somebody in the house."

Howes attempted to quiet her fears. Then he himself heard a noise.

Tiptoes to Telephone.

Howes tiptoed down a back stairway to the telephone and called up police headquarters.

"There's a burglar at 15 Beverly place. Send policemen quick," he said.

Though he spoke softly he believes the burglars heard him.

Two Flee as Police Come.

As the machine swung into Beverly place, which is 5400 west and runs one block from Delmar boulevard to Von Versen avenue, two men ran from the front yard of the Howes residence.

Closely pursued by the police automobile, they fled toward Von Versen avenue. Repeated shots did not stop them.

BURGLARS GET $1.98, MISS $100

They Also Take Some Clothing From the House but Overlook the Silverware.

Burglars broke into the home of Henry Young, a florist, at 5515 Waterman avenue, some time Thursday night while the family were asleep and stole $1 from Young and 98 cents and a coat and waistcoat belonging to his son, Ray Young.

The robbery was not discovered until Young got up Friday morning and could not find his clothes. A search revealed the clothes lying downstairs in the reception room, where burnt matches were scattered about the floor.

Investigation showed that the entire house had been ransacked, but the burglars had not touched $100 in Young's dresser drawer, nor had any of the silverware been taken from the dining room.

Mrs. Young reports that she saw two men, one tall and the other short, looking at the house Thursday afternoon, and she suspects them.

Robbed of His Watch and $5.

Lon Gilbert of 1530 Olive street was robbed of a watch and $5 by two highwaymen at Seventeenth and Olive streets Thursday night.

Holdup Men Get $2 and a Ring.

George Fox of 810 North Fourteenth street was robbed of $2 and a gold ring by two men at Fourteenth and St. Charles streets Thursday night.

Negress With Knife Took His $250.

H. Ulysses Nicolat, stopping at the Oaks Hotel, reported to the police of Central District Thursday night that a negress held a knife to his throat while she robbed him of $250 in front of 2225 Market street. The robbery, he said, occurred at midnight.

Burglars Take Furs and Silks.

Burglars ransacked the home of Mrs. Rose Barley, 1609 North Twenty-third street, Thursday night and stole women's wearing apparel valued at several hundreds of dollars. Furs and silks were included in the plunder.

Thief Too Fleet for Victim.

After being robbed of $25 on an Eighteenth street car between St Charles street and Washington avenue Thursday night, M. F. Burns of 2621 St. Vincent avenue chased the pickpocket to Twentieth and Olive streets, where the latter escaped.

Robbed of $50 in Saloon.

William Morgan, a structural iron worker, living at 3706 North Ninth street, reported to the police of the North Marzet Street District Thursday night that two men had robbed him of $50 in a saloon on North Ninth street. On the night of Jan. 17 Morgan also reported having been robbed near his home.

TOUGH CAT TRIES TO WHIP ENTIRE FELINE EXHIBIT

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Jan. 27.—The annual show of the Pittsburg Cat Club closed last night. It came very nearly closing about 8 a. m. yesterday, when Diamond, a large cat of the streets, known to every habitue of the Diamond Market, surreptitiously gained entrance to Old City Hall, above the market, where the several hundred aristocratic cats were in repose. Diamond is owned by John Crowley, a night watchman, and for some years has traveled with him on his rounds. He is known to have killed about 15 cats and has whipped many dogs.

Within three seconds after Diamond had slipped into the show there was a fuss. Diamond never did like a good-lookig cat, a clean cat nor a strange cat of any kind, and he started in to whip the entire show. He was outnumbered, but luckily, he could engage only about a dozen at once.

People for blocks around thought there was a fire or a riot. Half a dozen watchmen vainly tried to stop the fighting. Diamond had sent many cats limping away and was apparently only getting warmed up when Crowley, his master, rushed into the hall and called him. That ended it. Diamond bounded on top of his master's shoulders and was borne away.

SMOKE OVERCOMES FIREMEN; CITIZENS TAKE THEIR POSTS

Three firemen were overcome by smoke while fighting a fire that destroyed the office and lumber shed of the Holekamp Bros. Lumber Co. at Lockwood and Gray avenues, Webster Groves, at 2:30 a. m. Friday. The loss is estimated at $30,000 by Robert E. Holekamp, president of the company.

The flames broke out in a room in the rear of the office of the company during a thunderstorm early Friday. It is thought that the building was struck by lightning. After destroying the office the flames leaped to the large shed in which was stored doors, sashes, building material and tar roofing paper.

Four lines of hose were being played on the immense shed by the Old Orchard and Webster Groves volunteer fire departments when the flames reached the tar paper stored in the center of the structure. The pent-up dense smoke suddenly rushed out of the front of the building and enveloped the firemen. Three were overcome before they could escape, and were carried to places of safety by their comrades. They were revived an hour later and went back to their lines of hose.

When the fire alarm was sounded many residents of Webster Groves ran to the place scantily clad and assisted in fighting the flames. When the three firemen were disabled, residents volunteered to take their places and held the hose lines until they were relieved.

LETTERS DEMAND BIG RANSOM FOR MISSING HEIRESS

Arnold Family Lawyers Doubt Whether Writers Know Where Young Woman Is.

GIRL ABSENT SIX WEEKS

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Lawyers for Francis R. Arnold, the wealthy perfumery importer, whose daughter, Dorothy, has been missing from her home since Dec. 12, today admitted that two letters demanding a ransom for the young woman had been received by Arnold within the last 24 hours. One of the letters, Arnold said, demanded more than he could possibly raise, although he is rated as a millionaire.

Garvan & Armstrong, the lawyers directing the search, are not inclined to regard the missives seriously. They declare that anyone holding Miss Arnold for a ransom would have communicated with her relatives weeks ago. The young woman has been missing for more than six weeks.

"One of the letters," said Arnold in his home today, "is evidently from an ordinary blackmailer. I attach some importance to the other, for the man who wrote it seems to know something about what happened to my daughter. Both letters are postmarked New York City.

"I am still certain that my daughter either has been kidnaped or murdered."

Family Is Secretive.

A high police official who has had something to do with following clews suggested by the family, said today that some information the family possesses concerning Miss Arnold's movements has been withheld.

The family, this police official said, does not wish to have all the truth revealed. He would not tell what had been confided to him, as he felt that this was in the confidence of the family.

The Arnold family have declined to tell, among other things, who were the friends of Miss Arnold. They explain that, through their detectives, they have run down every possible clew that might have its origin in the social circle of the Arnolds. Therefore, they say, they do not wish their friends bothered any further by the questions of reporters.

THEATER-GOERS SEE POLICEMEN CHASE CALF THROUGH STREETS

Animal Finally Is Captured but Refuses to Go to Station; Is Tied to Box.

Theater patrons homeward bound Thursday night saw four patrolmen, a sergeant and two citizens chasing a long-legged animal along Olive street in the neighborhood of Broadway.

The chase began at Fourth and Morgan streets and ended at Commercial and Olive streets. Frank Moresey of 112 Lucas avenue and Louis Weber of 116 Soulard street encountered a straying calf in the commission house district at 11:15 p. m., and were about to capture it when it skipped away toward Broadway.

South along Broadway the calf ran, and at Washington avenue Patrolmen Maheney and Letter joined in the chase. At Olive street the pursuing party was reinforced by Sergt. John Flanagan and Patrolmen Quinn and Duley.

At Commercial street the calf sank to its knees. The police, panting for breath, soon caught up and tied a rope about the calf's neck. They then tried to lead it to Central Station, but it refused to move and the police tied it to a patrol box.

MAN WHOSE WIFE AND DAUGHTER ARE IN PRISON HANGS HIMSELF

Women Are Serving a Penitentiary Term of 14 Years for Murder of Baby.

William Rebstock, whose wife and daughter were sentenced a week ago in Granite City to 14 years each in the penitentiary for murder, was found dead, with a clothes line around his neck, hanging from the roof of a shed in the rear of his home, 2142 B street, Granite City, at 10:15 a. m., Friday. It is believed that he worried over the fate of his wife and daughter until he became insane.

Mrs. Veronica Rebstock, 45 years old, and her daughter, Anna, 22 years old, were convicted of the murder of Anna's infant, which was found strangled to death with a piece of twine.

BALLOT RECOUNT BEGINS SATURDAY; WATCHERS BARRED

CAN STUDY REGISTRATION

Investigators Empowered to Collect Any Evidence Bearing on Election.

From a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 27.—The Democratic majority in the House overrode the Republican minority in its demand for watchers in the recount of the St. Louis vote on members of the Legislature, and passed a resolution to conduct a recount without the presence of watchers selected by the Republican contestees. The recount will begin tomorrow in St. Louis.

The question arose in the House late yesterday afternoon on motion of Hiram Lloyd, minority leader, and the debate led to what threatened for a time to be a personal encounter between Representative Taylor of Chariton County and Representative Irwin of Cole County.

In deciding the procedure in the contest cases of St. Louis members of the Legislature, the Elections Committee reported in favor of sending a subcommittee to St. Louis to recount the ballots in the Third Legislative District. The report made no provision for watchers to be selected by the Democratic contestants and the Republican contestees.

Watchers Are Suggested.

Lloyd offered an amendment to the report, providing that the three Democratic contestants should be permitted to select a watcher, and that the Republican contestees should be permitted to select one.

Chairman Lynch of the Elections Committee opposed the amendment, contending that its only purport was to permit police interference with the work of the committee in recounting the ballots and in investigating the registration.

Lloyd replied, and was followed by Irwin, both for the Republicans.

As soon as Irwin took his seat, Taylor, who is the principal speaker for the Democrats on the floor of the House, opposed the amendment, and made an attack on Irwin, resorting to personal remarks. Irwin replied in the same spirit, and was applauded by the Republicans.

Too Much for Two Men.

Taylor made the point that there are two Republican members of the Elections Committee, and that they are capable of watching the recount without having special watchers. Irwin and Lloyd showed that it is customary for several ballot boxes to be open at the same time during a recount and that it would be impossible for two Republicans to watch the work of four or five tables.

Lynch declared the Democratic majority would be fair, while Lloyd contended that if a spirit of fairness were to be shown a proper plan would be in the adoption of the amendment to permit watchers for both parties to be present.

The committee chosen to make the recount is composed of Representatives Lynch of Randolph County, Barbee of Saline, Simmons of Shelby, Taylor of Chariton, Democrats; and Silver of St. Charles and Valentine of Putnam, Republicans.

At a meeting last night the committee decided to go to St. Louis Friday afternoon and begin its investigations Saturday. The recount is expected to take three days.

The committee has power not only to count the ballots, but to investigate the registration, and to take such evidence as it desires touching the last election.

New Senators Join in Tariff Session Plea

"Will you obstruct the action of the people? Will you say to them: 'You can repudiate us if you will, but we will let the effect of our misrule stand as long as possible?'

"Will you say to them that the result of your work, which is unsatisfactory to them, shall remain and that the interests which have been controlling this Congress will continue to gather their ill-gotten gains for another year?

"If you do, I tell you that an outraged public will, when the next election comes, sweep you not only from this House but from the Senate and presidency as well.

"I am not here to condemn any man because of his party affiliations. No matter to what party he belongs, his country should stand first. Anyone who refuses to obey the will of the people is unworthy of trust and should be driven from the public service."

Hope for Board Vanished.

President Taft's hopes for a permanent tariff board, without forcing conditions into an extra session have dwindled. Senator Smoot of Utah, a visitor at the White House, repeated the warning given by Senator Bailey that the latter would filibuster against a tariff commission before he would let it go through the Senate.

Senator Bailey told the Post-Dispatch correspondent that he believed the Democrats and the Republicans, including the President, recognized the duty put upon them by the election, and that they would do their duty. But the Senator left no doubt that if he saw an indication in either party to avoid that duty he would force the issue, repugnant as the method itself might be.

MAINE TAKES UP TARIFF SESSION

Legislature Is Asked to Call Upon Taft to Reconvene Congress.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

AUGUSTA, Me., Jan. 27.—Representative Albert W. Plummer of Lisbon introduced a resolution substantially the same as the resolution pending before the Legislature of New York, to petition President Taft to call a special session of Congress to revise the tariff on the necessaries of life. Plummer tabled the resolution for special assignment today, thus making it sure to be brought up for debate and preventing regulars from tabling the resolution or postponing it indefinitely.

Immediately Representative Howard Davis of Yarmouth, one of the progressive Republicans, asked that the bill be tabled for printing, with special assignment for today, so that when the debate comes up the members may have a thorough understanding of the resolution.

Red Hot Debate Likely.

It is the present indication that the resolution is going to stir up a red-hot debate. Several progressive Republicans will back the fighting Democrat in his battle for the passage of the resolution, which will be opposed by several stand-pat party leaders.

Speaker Frank A. Morey of Lewiston has declared himself in favor of the resolution, and Congressman-elect Daniel J. McGillicudy of Lewiston, whose statement the Post-Dispatch published several days ago, said last night that no Democrat could well vote against it.

President Nathan Clifford of the State Senate is conferring with the leaders of that body, and will confer with Speaker Morey as to the attitude of the majority party.

The indorsement of Frederick Roble, the Portland banker, a Republican, and Maine's oldest living former Governor, who in a signed statement to the Post-Dispatch strongly favors an extra session of Congress, will have much weight with the Republican members of the Legislature. His attitude is being industriously circulated by the progressive Republicans among their brethren of more conservative stamp. Former Gov. Roble has been a staunch Republican all his life and not an insurgent in the ordinary sense of the word.

Gov. Frederick W. Plaisted would not make any statement as to his opinion of the resolution, but this is merely in line with his determination at the beginning of his term not to express himself on national matters, and also to leave the Legislature to its own deliberation without hindrance from him.

Representative Plummer introduced his resolution yesterday morning under suspension of the rules. As soon as the order was taken to the clerk's desk, he was surrounded by members anxious to digest it. It carried confusion into the camp of certain old line leaders, who had heard of the resolution, but thought that it had been nipped in the bud.

MAINE VOTERS AGAINST DELAY

The Post-Dispatch and New York World correspondents in the leading cities in Maine were instructed two weeks ago to present the question of a special session of Congress to leading citizens, irrespective of party, and ascertain as nearly as possible the actual sentiment in their respective communities.

Returns from Bangor, Belfast, Biddeford, Brunswick, Lewiston, Norway, Portland and Rockland show 118 representative citizens of all classes and professions in favor of the special session, and 43 opposed. These opinions were divided:

At Bangor.

For 41, against 1.

Of 42 who were asked for their views on the subject of early tariff revision, 41 were in favor of the action at the earliest possible time. Of the whole number interviewed 27 were not willing to be quoted, but of these 26 were in favor of a special session.

Both Republicans and Democrats are anxious for a correction of existing economic evils as embodied in the present tariff, the only difference being the Republicans as a rule seem to be the more anxious that Congress shall proceed with caution.

Mayor John F. Woodman: Whatever is to be done in the matter of tariff revision should be done as quickly as possible.

Former Mayor F. O. Beal: If we are to have a reform of the tariff let us have it at once. I don't believe tariff reform should be mixed up with other questions in a presidential campaign.

Charles W. Mullen, candidate for State Senator: There is no reason for delay that I can see; neither should Congress go at the matter in haste.

Former Mayor Leon F. Higgins of Brewer: There should be prompt action regarding the tariff. Whatever is done, the sooner the better. The matter should not be delayed until the presidential year, and the issue thus confused or obscured.

Principal J. O. Newton, Kent's Hill Seminary: I believe the people call for a change and in no mistaken terms. The Democratic party ought to be given an opportunity to work out relief at the earliest moment possible.

Others in favor: Capt. H. C. Chapman, hotel proprietor; Lewis Kirstein, real estate; Terence B. Toole, lawyer; Arthur Stetson, president Union Insurance Co.; Stanley P. Dennett, timber lands; Thomas White, merchant; G. Rockwell Youngs, manufacturer; P. S. Gillig, lawyer; James W. Cratty, hotel proprietor; Ara Warren, merchant; William F. Curran, insurance.

Opposed: Arthur Chapin, president Bangor Chamber of Commerce—I do not favor a special session of the newly-elected Congress in March to reform the tariff. I believe Taft is justified in deferring the lower duties until the first regular session.

At Belfast.

For, 9 Democrats; against 0.

A canvass of this city shows Democrats strongly in favor of the extra session for tariff revision and failed to reveal any Democrats against the special session.

Edgar F. Hanson, Mayor: Taft is not justified in deferring lower duties and lower cost of living. Delays at his hands do not aid in the national prosperity, peace and contentment. The evils are with the Republican tariff schedules.

Fred W. Brown, City Solicitor: The people have stood the high cost of living and high prices too long already. Tariff reform should not be postponed another day. Taft would have failed of election had he not promised this revision.

Others in favor: Abner G. Gilmore, wealthy retired resident; Harvey S. Cunningham, street commissioner; Eben A. Littlefield, city clerk; Ralph L. Cooper, lumber merchant; Dr. E. A. Wilson, Dr. C. G. Kilgore, member of Governor's council; Orrin J. Dickey, trustee State School for Boys.

At Lewiston.

For, 6 Democrats, 6 Republicans; against, 1 Democrat, 3 Republicans.

The majority of Democrats and a large proportion of Republicans believe that the voice of the people should be answered, and an equally large element expressed the opinion that immediate settlement of the tariff question would benefit rather than injure business.

Daniel J. McGillicuddy, Congressman-elect: If legislation is to give the people relief from existing burdens, why should it be deferred?

John B. Smith, president of the Lewiston Board of Trade: I favor a special session or anything else that will have a tendency to restore business and that will relieve the feeling of uncertainty that exists in the business world at present.

Others in favor: Mayor Frank A. Morey of Lewiston, serving fourth term; Mayor Irving L. Morrill of Auburn, serving second term; County Attorney W. H. Hines, the Rev. Dr. F. M. Treble of Auburn, J. S. P. Wilson, former Mayor of Auburn and Democratic State Representative; George W. Furbush, Republican, ex-Mayor of Lewiston; Aubert N. Penley, Republican, former Mayor of Auburn; D. J. Callahan, lawyer, of Lewiston, president of the State Board of Trade; C. J. Cronin, president of Lewiston and Auburn Merchants' Association; the Rev. Father Thomas F. Butler, pastor St. Joseph's Church, Lewiston; former Alderman Irving L. Hammond of Lewiston, former State Senator Everett L. Piloon of Auburn.

G. W. Wood, editor Lewiston Sun (Ind.): I do not think the election of a Democratic House is a mandate to President Taft to propose another revision. To have the Democratic House and Republican President come to sharp issue in the summer of 1912 would be to me an ideal opening of the presidential campaign.

Others opposed: George C. Wing of Auburn, lawyer, former member National Republican Committee; Everett A. Davis, former Alderman, Lewiston; F. X. Belleau, Lewiston, lawyer, City Clerk of Androscoggin; the Rev. C. H. Temple, pastor First Universalist Church, Lewiston.

At Portland.

For: Eight Democrats, two Republicans, one Independent; against, five Republicans.

Former Gov. Frederick Roble (Rep.), bank president: The question is one of the most important the voters have to consider, and it would be much better to have it settled at the earliest possible moment. It is my opinion that the President would meet the expectations of the voters of the United States if he should call an extra session at the earliest period that would meet his own judgment.

THE LATEST STYLES IN KNITTING AND CROCHETING

The "Sports" Sets—A Winter Novelty.

A skirt, cape and hood crocheted of yarn, matching in stitch and color—one of the jauntiest, "sportiest" effects imaginable. The skirt is a snug-fitting, seven-gore model. The cape is shaped close at the shoulder, flaring sharply to about the knee and hanging full.

The hood is silk-lined and fits close at face and neck. Here is protection from the cold such as you never found before; combined with lightness and permitting freedom of movement. This set is a severe test of yarn quality. The yarn must be unusually elastic to keep such large pieces in shape. That is why it should, by all means, be made of Fleisher's Germantown Zephyr.

Full directions for making this and many other new and staple articles may be found in the new (eighth) edition of Fleisher's Knitting and Crocheting Manual, an invaluable handbook for beginner and expert. Contains a complete course of instruction in the various stitches and is the only authoritative guide to fashion in articles made of yarns.

Stops All Pain

Wonderful Pacific Coast Remedy for Rheumatism, Gout and Neuralgia

Pinus—a remarkable preparation—used for 20 years by the people of California, is now within reach of everybody, bringing relief to thousands from coast to coast.

Pinus has saved thousands of sufferers after long years of agonising attacks. Joints swollen and misshapen by Inflammatory Rheumatism, nerves and muscles overpowered by the intense misery of Chronic Rheumatism and Sciatica, have been restored to health and strength—pain and swelling banished by the marvelous properties of Pinus, a product of California's wonderful soil and sun.

Rheumatism and Neuralgia first come from impurities in the blood and a derangement of the liver and kidneys, developed by cold dampness, sudden chilling while perspiring—throwing back upon the system the uric acid which crystallizes, forming deposits around the joints and attacks the muscles and nerves.

Pinus acts directly on the liver and kidneys, sweeps them of impurities, nourishes them back to health, regulates the action of the stomach and bowels, removes all deposits, enriches the blood, promotes a good appetite and strengthens the entire system.

Your druggist has Pinus or can get it for you. Every wholesale druggist carries it. Get our booklet full of letters from people who were in the worst stages and who found immediate relief and complete recovery in Pinus. If you have difficulty in getting our booklet or remedy, write us. Always found at Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. Ask for Pinus today. Avoid the suffering the penetrating weather will otherwise bring upon you. —Pinus Medicine Co., Los Angeles, Cal.

London Papers Silent on the Subject of Reciprocity.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—The afternoon papers are silent on the subject of the American-Canadian reciprocity agreement apparently waiting to hear from the political leaders. The tariff reformers are inclined to look askance at the agreement as possibly harmful to imperial preference, but they do not wish to antagonize the Canadian Government by criticism. They would have been better suited if the agreement had been postponed until after the imperial conference in May, from which they anticipate considerable grist for their tariff reform bill.

Try Olive Tablets—the Substitute for Calomel

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are the one substitute for dangerous calomel. They do all of calomel's work without any of its bad after effects.

There is no necessity, when you take Olive Tablets, of following them up with nasty, sickening, griping salts or castor oil, as you should after taking calomel.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel or any other metallic drugs; they are a purely vegetable compound, sugar-coated, easy to take, and never gripe or cause weakness.

Thousands of people take one every night at bedtime just to prevent disorder of the liver, constipation, bad breath, pimples, headache, etc.

Dr. Edwards, calomel's old enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with liver and bowel troubles.

Try them for a week. Take one on retiring nightly.

SKIN DISEASES

HUMORS IN THE BLOOD

Nature has made ample provision in the moisture and sunshine of the air for the outward protection and healthy condition of the skin. But the more important work of nourishing the cuticle has been left to an inward source—the blood. It is from the circulation that the pores and glands receive their stimulus, and the fibrous tissues are all preserved in a healthful state because of constant nutriment supplied by the blood. It is only when the circulation becomes infected with humors or acids that we are troubled with skin affections. The humors producing these troubles are carried through the circulation direct to the skin, and their irritating or inflammatory effect remains until the blood is cleansed. S. S. S. cures Skin Diseases, because it is the greatest of all blood purifiers. It goes into the circulation and REMOVES the acids and humors which are causing the trouble, builds up the weak, acrid blood, and completely cures Eczema, Acne, Tetter, Salt Rheum, pimples, rashes, and all eruptions of the skin. When S. S. S. has driven out the humors the skin is again nourished with cooling, healthful blood, natural evaporation is renewed, and the skin, becomes soft and smooth. By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Within less than ten months after the initiation by President Taft of negotiations with the Canadian Government, there was laid simultaneously before the American Congress at Washington and the Canadian Parliament at Ottawa a reciprocity arrangement which, if approved by the legislative branches of the two governments, will do much in the opinion of the negotiators to enlarge and liberalize the trade between the United States and Canada.

The arrangements do not take the form of a treaty and considerable time will be saved in the consummation of the agreement, which can be made effective by a simple majority vote in each of the two legislatures.

The agreement, to become effective, must be amendatory to the existing tariffs in the United States and in Canada and it will require sharp work to accomplish this, so far as Congress is concerned, in the brief period of time remaining of the present session.

Basis of the Agreement.

The basis of the agreement is this:

"Reciprocity on leading food products, such as wheat and other grains, dairy products; fresh fruits and vegetables; fish of all kinds; eggs and poultry; cattle, sheep and other live animals. Also certain commodities now free in one country are to be made free by the other, such as cotton-seed oil by Canada and rough lumber by the United States.

"Tin and tin plates now dutiable are made mutually free.

"Barbed wire fencing now exempted from duty by Canada is also exempted by the United States. Some raw materials, such as mica and gypsum, which enter into numerous industries, are to be made free by the United States. Printing paper is to become free on the removal of all restrictions on the exportation of pulp wood.

"Mutually reduced identical rates on secondary food products such as fresh meats, canned meats, bacon and hams, lard and lard compounds, canned vegetables, flour, cereal preparations and other foodstuffs, partly manufactured.

"Mutually reduced rates on a list of manufactured commodities which includes motor vehicles, cutlery, clocks and watches, sanitary fixtures, satchels and similar leather goods, plate glass, brass band instruments, printing ink and miscellaneous articles. Agricultural implements, such as plows, harvesters, threshing machines and drills, are reduced by Canada to the United States rates.

"A small list of articles is made special by each country. Canada reduces coal to 45 cents a ton and cement to 11 cents a hundred pounds. The United States reduces iron ore to 10 cents a ton, lowers the rate on aluminum products and on dressed lumber.

"Total amount of duties to be remitted by the United States, $4,850,000.

"Total amount of duties to be remitted by Canada, $2,560,000.

"Value of articles now dutiable which the United States proposes to make free $39,811,000—equal to 76.4 per cent.

"Value of dutiable articles on which the United States proposes to reduce duties, $7,521,000—equal to 14.4 per cent.

"Value of articles imported into the United States which are affected by the reciprocal agreement, $47,333,000—equal to 91 per cent.

"Value of articles remaining dutiable at full rates, $4,771,000, equal to 9 per cent.

"Value of articles now dutiable which Canada proposes to make free, $21,968,000, equal to 16.5 per cent.

"Value of dutiable articles on which Canada proposes to reduce duties, $35,870,000, equal to 19.5 per cent.

"Value of articles imported into Canada which are affected by the reciprocal agreement, $47,823,000, equal to 36 per cent.

"Value of articles remaining dutiable, $85,198,000, equal to 64 per cent.

Other Duties Remitted.

"Amount of duty remitted by the United States on leading Canadian articles:

"Sawed lumber, $1,282,000; fish, $464,000; hay, $386,000; flaxseed and linseed, $352,000; wood pulp, $308,000; live animals, $276,000; vegetables, $257,000; printing paper, $165,000; oats, $142,000; mica, $110,000; dairy products, $105,000; gypsum, $101,000; railroad ties, telephone posts, etc., $99,000; wheat flour, $97,000.

"Amount of duty remitted by Canada on leading articles from the United States:

"Coal, bituminous, $455,000; fresh fruits, $262,000; fresh vegetables, $242,000; cotton seed oil, $104,000; live animals, $162,000; paper, $161,000; meal, $147,000; agricultural implements, $140,000; fish of all kinds, $100,000; meat products, $93,000; motor vehicles, $91,000."

"Pulp of wood mechanically ground; pulp of wood, chemical, bleached or unbleached; news print paper and other paper and paper board, manufactured from mechanical wood pulp or from per, board or wood pulp, or the wood chemical wood pulp, or of which such pulp is a component matter of chief value colored in the pulp, or not colored, and valued at not more than 4 cents per pound, not including printed or decorated wall paper free.

"Provided that such paper and board, valued at 4 cents per pound or less, and wood pulp, being the products of Canada, when imported therefrom, directly into the United States shall be admitted free of duty, on the condition precedent that no port duty, export license fee or other export charge of any kind whatsoever (whether in the form of additional charge of license fee or otherwise) or any prohibition or restriction in any way of the exportation (whether by law, order regulation, contractual relation or otherwise, directly or indirectly) shall have been imposed upon such paper, board or wood pulp or the wood used in the manufacture of such paper, board or wood pulp or the wood pulp used in the manufacture of such paper or board.

"Provided, also, that such wood pulp, paper or board, being the products of the United States shall be admitted free of duty into Canada from the United States when such wood pulp, paper or board being the products of Canada, are admitted from all parts of Canada free of duty in the United States."

President Taft, in his message, said in part:

"My purpose in making a reciprocal trade agreement with Canada has been not only to obtain one which would be mutually advantageous to both countries, but one which also would be truly national in its scope as applied to our own country and would be a benefit to all sections.

"The current of business and the transportation facilities that will be established forward and backward across the border cannot but inure to the benefit of the border states.

"Some readjustments may be needed. That the broadening of the sources of supplies at the opening of the timber resources of the Dominion to our needs, that the addition to the supply of raw materials will be limited to no particular section does not require demonstration.

"Both countries in their industrial development have to meet the competition of lower priced labor in other parts of the world. This has made it difficult to extend the principle of reciprocal relations to many manufactured commodities, but we have succeeded in doing so in various instances."

DOGCATCHER MISSES DOG, IS LAUGHED AT, THEN FINED $50

Penalty Imposed on Charge That He Menaced Tormentor With Pistol.

William Schultz, a city dog catcher, became angry when Charles Waller laughed at him because a small dog escaped from him Thursday afternoon at Nineteenth street and Prairie avenue and, according to Waller's testimony, Friday in the Dayton Street Police Court, drew a revolver.

Schultz denied that he flourished a weapon. He said Waller tried to trip him while he was chasing the dog. Waller and his fellow workmen on a building under construction there denied this, and Judge Pollard accepted their version. He fined Schultz $50 and the dog catcher appealed.

Schultz says the dog was a fox terrier. Waller thinks it was a bulldog. Waller's companions wavered between poodles and curs.

SMOKE COSTS CITIZENS OF CHICAGO $21,830,000 A YEAR

"We Have a Host of Suits in the Courts All the Time," Says Inspector.

CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—Smoke costs the citizens of Chicago $2,830,000 a year, or about $3 per capita, according to statistics given out yesterday by City Smoke Inspector Bird.

"Because of smoke," Mr. Bird says, "the laundries reap a harvest and clothing merchants, dyers, house renovaters, painters and operators of vacuum cleaning machines are rapidly becoming millionaires."

"In Chicago our loss is $10 per capita, or a little matter of $21,830,000 a year. This condition could be remedied in three or four years if we had the men and the money to go ahead. As the matter stands, we are able to make some headway against violators, and have a host of suits in the courts all the time."

HOWLAND WILLING TO CHANGE CREED FOR ONE MILLION

Former Fiancee Testifies to Remark He Made After Marrying Heiress.

BROKE PROMISE TO GIRL

Mother Tells of Hearing Young Woman Sob Because He Jilted Her.

Depositions were filed Friday in Judge Rassieur's court in the suit of John A. Howland, lifeguard, against Mrs. Rose C. O'Brien, Miss Marie O'Brien and James A. McKeown, for $100,000 for the alleged alienation of the affections of Howland's wife, formerly Miss Helen O'Brien, heiress to over $100,000. The depositions dealt with Howland's acquaintance with Miss Sarah Harvey Hayes of Philadelphia, whose parents wrote to Mrs. O'Brien, the Rev. Father O'Rourke and Archbishop Glennon, preventing a reconciliation between Howland and his wife.

Miss Hayes, formerly a choir singer in a Methodist church in Philadelphia, testified in her deposition that she met Howland in February, 1908, at a leap year party in Philadelphia and that he was afterward attentive to her and told her that he would always stand by her and would never marry any other girl.

She learned that he had broken this promise when she went by invitation last Labor day to Spring Lake, N. J., where he was employed as a lifeguard. After another guard had told her that Howland had been married, she met him on the board walk and he admitted it. He told her his wife was a Catholic, and that as they had been married by a Baptist minister, her people wanted them to be remarried by a priest. He said, she testified, that he would go to any church for a million dollars.

Heard Daughter Sobbing.

Mrs. Hattie North Hayes, mother of Miss Hayes, testified that when she heard her daughter sobbing at night she asked an explanation and her daughter confessed the cause.

She then wrote to Mrs. O'Brien, Archbishop Glennon and the Rev. Father O'Rourke. She did this, she said, not for revenge, but because she thought it was her duty as a mother.

John Hayes, father of Miss Hayes, testified that he had also written letters to St. Louis, and George W. Boyer, an attorney in whose office Miss Hayes was employed, testified to an admission made by Miss Hayes to him, and also said he had been retained to prosecute Howland.

Girl's Story Wrecked Plans.

Howland and his wife separated shortly after the marriage. He followed her to St. Louis and sought a reconciliation and seemed about to succeed when letters from Philadelphia apprised his wife and her relatives and advisers of his treatment of Miss Hayes, and he was spurned.

Mrs. Howland afterward wrote a letter to Archbishop Glennon, making a public confession of her "sin" in having been married to Howland by a Baptist minister, and it was read in St. Mark's Church. She signed it "Helen O'Brien."

S. S. MATTHEWS, VEGETARIAN, DIES SUDDENLY AT AGE OF 89

He Was Apparently in Good Health When He Went to Visit Son.

Stephen S. Matthews, 89 years old, died in the home of his son, John J. Matthews, Thursday afternoon. Matthews left his own home early Thursday morning to visit his son in Tuxedo Park and was seemingly in good health. After lunch he complained of being tired and was helped upstairs by his granddaughter and sat in a chair to rest. He was found dead in the same chair three hours later.

Matthews was born in Ireland, but came to this country when he was 18 years old. He lived in Lafayette, Ind., for three years, and moved to this city, where he worked as an engineer. He was a strict vegetarian, having abstained from meat for 33 years.

The funeral will take place from the home of his son, in Tuxedo Park. The funeral services will be held in St. Alphonsus' Church, Grand and Finney avenues.

TRIES TO BREAK INTO CITY HALL, THEN CALLS POLICE

After trying in vain to enter the city hall at 2 a. m. Friday, John Mayberry, 60 years old, sat down on the Clark avenue steps of the building and shouted for the police. He had tried for admission at the entrances on Market street, Thirteenth street and Clark avenue and had found them all locked.

Timothy O'Connell, night telephone operator at Police Headquarters, across the street, heard the man calling for help and notified Central District Station. Patrolmen were sent to investigate.

"I thought this was the police station," said Mayberry, when asked what business he had at the city hall. "A woman robbed me of my watch. I was drinking with her in the neighborhood of Fourteenth street and Washington avenue."

The police accompanied Mayberry and he directed them to a rooming house at Fourteenth and Washington, where they arrested Pearl Herndon, 21 years old, a waitress. Mayberry's watch was found on a table in her room.

"I didn't steal his watch," said the woman. "I was only keeping it for him." Mayberry said he would prosecute. He stops at the University Hotel, Seventeenth and Pine streets.

Judge Hunt Denies Aiding Smelters.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Judge Hunt, who was nominated for the new Commerce Court, appeared before a subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Judiciary yesterday to answer charges filed against him. He denied that he had aided the smelters by delaying proceedings and in this statement he was supported by Senator Carter.

ONE DOSE RELIEVES INDIGESTION AND ALL OTHER STOMACH DISTRESS.

If you had some Diapepsin handy and would take a little now your stomach distress or Indigestion would vanish in five minutes and you would feel fine.

This harmless preparation will digest anything you eat and overcome a sour, out-of-order stomach before you realize it.

If your meals don't tempt you, or what little you do eat seems to fill you, or lays like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of Indigestion.

Ask your Pharmacist for a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and take a little just as soon as you can. There will be no sour rising, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, Nausea, Debilitating Headaches, Dizziness or Intestinal griping. This will all go, and, besides, there will be no undigested food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin is a certain cure for out-of-order stomachs, because it prevents fermentation and takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is at any drugstore waiting for you.

These large 50-cent cases contain more than sufficient to thoroughly cure almost any case of Dyspepsia, Indigestion or any other stomach disturbance.—ADV.

HOW HAPPY THE WORD 'CUTICURA' SOUNDS TO ME

For It Cured My Baby of Itching, Torturing Eczema. First Came when Between 3 and 4 Weeks Old. Used Everything Imaginable. 2 Cakes Soap and One Box Ointment Cured.

"I can't tell in words how happy the word 'Cuticura' sounds to me, for it cured my baby of itching, torturing eczema. It first came when she was between three and four weeks old, appearing on her head. I used everything imaginable and had one doctor's bill after another but nothing cured it. Then the eczema broke out so badly behind her ear that I really thought her ear would come off. For months I doctored it but to no avail. Then it began at her nose and her eyes were nothing but sores. I had to keep her in a dark room for two weeks. The doctor did no good, so I stopped him coming.

"For about two weeks I had used Cuticura Soap for her every day, then I got a box of Cuticura Ointment and began to use that. In a week there was a marked improvement. In all I used two cakes of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment and my baby was cured of the sores. This was last November; now her hair is growing out nicely and she has not a scar on her. I can not praise Cuticura enough. I can take my child anywhere and people are amazed to see her without a sore. From the time she was four weeks old until she was three years, she was never without the terrible eruption but now, thanks to Cuticura, I have a well child. Mrs. H. E. Householder, 2004 Wilhelm St., Baltimore, Md., May 16, 1910."

Make the Word Pictures Effective

When you write a Want Ad give the facts. Make the explanation as complete as possible—a word picture of just what you wish accomplished, or of what you have to offer.

For example, suppose you want to sell a house—tell about the location, number of rooms, general architectural features, construction, accessibility, conveniences and similar details.

Make the reader see the house in his mind's eye through your description.

It remains for your advertisement to interest the readers after the Post-Dispatch has presented it to them—and in no other St. Louis newspaper can you talk to as many persons.

SMASH THE POLITICAL RING!

BOSS KIEL and 17 of his associates on the Republican City Committee are AGAINST the NEW CHARTER. WHY?
BOSS FAY of the Democratic City Committee, who once denounced the House Combine, is AGAINST the NEW CHARTER. WHY?
FRED W. PRIESMEYER is AGAINST the NEW CHARTER. WHY?
W. J. (BOOTS) BRENNAN is AGAINST the NEW CHARTER. WHY?
FERD WARNER is AGAINST the NEW CHARTER. WHY?
CHARLES (CAP) TROLL is AGAINST the NEW CHARTER. WHY?

BECAUSE The NEW CHARTER brings 7,000 city employes within the protection of the Classified CIVIL SERVICE, taking these positions out of the hands of the political bosses and their henchmen, and FORBIDDING the party committees to ASSESS them for CAMPAIGN PURPOSES.

BECAUSE The NEW CHARTER provides SWEEPING CONTROL OF PUBLIC UTILITY CORPORATIONS and the PUBLIC OWNERSHIP of THESE UTILITIES whenever the public welfare demands it.

BECAUSE The NEW CHARTER will give the people the power to remove UNWORTHY PUBLIC OFFICIALS from the MAYOR down and will REDUCE the APPOINTIVE POWER of the Mayor 50 PER CENT.

BECAUSE The NEW CHARTER provides for the election of a LEGISLATIVE BODY of fifteen, ELECTED BY ALL THE PEOPLE FROM ALL THE WARDS and abolishes the malodorous HOUSE OF DELEGATES system.

BECAUSE The NEW CHARTER provides for the establishment of a MUNICIPAL PRINTING PLANT which will result in a big yearly saving to the taxpayers.

These Are the Men, Who, in Response to an OVERWHELMING Public Demand, WITHOUT COMPENSATION, Devoted 21 Months of Their Time to the Framing of the New Charter:

The Board of Freeholders, comprising thirteen men, was selected at the election held in St. Louis, April 7, 1909. It is bipartisan. The Board is composed of the following:

FREDERICK W. LEHMANN, chairman, attorney at law, recently appointed by President William H. Taft as Solicitor-General of the United States.
DWIGHT F. DAVIS, attorney, vice chairman.
EDWARD DEVOY, coal dealer.
CHARLES E. GIBSON, attorney.
AUGUST H. HOFFMAN, banker.
J. D. HOWE, attorney.
HENRY KOEHLER Jr., brewer.
JOHN F. LEE, attorney.
OWEN MILLER, musician.
JULIUS PITZMAN, civil engineer.
JOHN SCHMOLL, contractor.
ROBERT H. WHITELAW, paint dealer.
FREDERICK G. ZEIBIG, real estate dealer.

The present charter of St. Louis, known as the scheme and charter, was framed by a Board of Freeholders and adopted by the people at an election held August 22, 1876. It became the organic law October 22, 1876, at which time the city was formally divorced from St. Louis County and became a county in itself.

EMIL N. TOLKACZ, Chairman. Board of Education Building STEPHEN DOUGHTON, Secretary. JAMES A. SEDDON, Treasurer.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE:

Faint?

Have you weak heart, dizzy feelings, oppressed breathing after meals? Or do you experience pain over the heart, shortness of breath on going up-stairs and the many distressing symptoms which indicate poor circulation and bad blood? A heart tonic, blood and body-builder that has stood the test of over 40 years of cures is

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

The heart becomes regular as clock-work. The red blood corpuscles are increased in number—and the nerves in turn are well fed. The arteries are filled with good rich blood. That is why nervous debility, irritability, fainting spells, disappear and are overcome by this alterative extract of medicinal roots put up by Dr. Pierce without the use of alcohol. Ask your neighbor. Many have been cured of scrofulous conditions, ulcers, "fever-sores," white swellings, etc., by taking Dr. Pierce's Discovery. Just the refreshing and vitalizing tonic needed for excessive tissue waste, in convalescence from fevers or for run-down, anæmic, thin-blooded people. Stick to this safe and sane remedy and refuse all "just as good" kinds offered by the dealer who is looking for a larger profit. Nothing will do you half as much good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

PEEPING TOM SCARING WOMEN

Visits Several Homes Near Withnell and Indiana.

A "Peeping Tom" frightened several women in the neighborhood of Withnell and Indiana avenues Thursday night about bedtime.

Mrs. Louise Scherer and her daughter, Flora, saw the man peering at them through the basement window of their home, 2108 Withnell avenue. He disappeared when they screamed.

Mrs. Emma G. Bloomer of 3229 Indiana avenue reported the man stood on the back porch of her home and looked into the house through a window. Her screams routed him.

Scolded Boy Kills Himself.

LOAN SHARK BILL IS FAVORED IN THE MISSOURI SENATE

Judiciary Committee Reports Out Measure Proposed by Senator Casey.

From a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 27.—The loan-shark-and-time-payment lobby, which has been working vigorously in Jefferson City for several days, met defeat in the decision of the Judiciary Committee of the Senate to report favorably Senator Casey's bill to prohibit the assignment of wages.

The measure is considered most far-reaching in its effects in preventing the charging of usurious rates of interest, as it will prevent the taking leins on wages to pay loans, for which more than the legal interest rate has been charged.

St. Louis interests opposed to the bill were represented before the committee last night by Carl Otte, who made an argument against it. A delegation of time-payment house owners of Kansas City was also before the committee, opposing the bill.

Assignments for Five Years.

Senator Casey had before the committee copies of wage assignments showing that in some instances men had assigned their wages for a period of five years. Casey called them "then, now and forever" assignments. He said they were causing young men to become tramps, thieves and embezzlers by taking from them the power to collect their wages and by preventing them from procuring and holding positions, many business houses discharging an employe the moment an assignment is filed against his wages.

Casey's bill is receiving active support from Senator Kinney and Senator Brogan of St. Louis. Both indorsed the argument of Senator Casey.

Manages to Evade Law Now.

"In my opinion," said Casey, "this is the real way to prevent the detestable money shark from plying his trade among the unfortunate.

"In one way or another the money shark manages to evade the usury law. He might loan money in a few cases, but if the law declares, as my bill does, that every assignment of unearned wages is void, he can't do very much business. If he can't get security he is not going to be a very successful money lender.

"The time payment, jewelry and furniture houses, which get men into their toils, will be compelled to be satisfied with taking mortgages on the articles sold rather than on man's sweat and blood for years."

Anti-Cigarette Bill Appears.

Senator Peck introduced a bill in the Senate today prohibiting the sale of cigarettes and cigarette papers in the State.

In the House, Representative Gillespie introduced a bill appropriating $150,000 for a reformatory for first offenders against the law who are between 16 and 21 years old.

CONVICTS VANISH AFTER USING BAND INSTRUMENTS AS CLUBS

OSSINING, N. Y., Jan. 27.—All night search for the three convicts who escaped from Sing Sing Prison last night and were believed to have crossed the Hudson River on the ice, failed to reveal a trace of the fugitives.

The escape of the trio, one of whom is a life convict, was made after a rehearsal of the prison orchestra, when Ralph Taylor, Charles McGinn and William Rush, instruments in hand, stole into the courtyard passageway, beat down two guards with blows over the head with cornets and flutes and slipped through an open space in the iron palings by the riverside. They were fired at by the guards, but it is not believed any of the bullets took effect, and sight of the fugitives was soon lost on the foggy surface of the ice-covered river.

Rush was the life-term prisoner, having been sentenced in 1902 for murder in New York City. Ralph Taylor, known as the "silk hat burglar," was serving a 21-year term for burglary in Westchester County, and McGinn was serving a five-year burglary term.

Erman Would Buy Musical Instruments for Missouri Convicts.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 27.—Representative Erman would stifle the sighs of sorrow at the penitentiary with sweet strains of music. To this end he introduced a bill in the House appropriating $500 for the purchase of musical instruments to be used by the convicts.

SEEWIR'S GAS ADS ATTRACT WIDE ATTENTION

D. C. Seewir, advertising manager for the Laclede Gas Light Co., has been so successful in exploiting the advantages and economy of gas that his work has been noticed by all the gas companies of the country.

His advertising has been so novel and attractive that the gas journals of the country have reproduced much of it. His gas advertisements have been declared to be the most attractive and forceful that have ever been prepared.

His advertisements show how gas will save money and labor in the home, the office and the factory the year around. He originates novel ways of using gas, and he makes unusual and striking exhibits at expositions and fairs.

His most effective work in keeping the subject of gas before the public all the time is by newspaper advertising. Here his most forceful appeals are made, and this is the work that has attracted most attention away from home.

LEHMANN CHEERED WHEN HE EXPLAINS NEW CITY CHARTER

Audience Shouts When He Tells How Code Will Curtail Power of Bosses Over City Employes.

Frederick W. Lehmann, Solicitor-General of the United States, who traveled more than 1000 miles to analyze the proposed new city charter for the citizens of St. Louis at big public meetings, will speak again Friday night at Lemp's Park Hall, Thirteenth and Utah streets. Lehmann received a splendid ovation in North St. Louis Thursday night when he spoke to a crowded house at Thirteenth and Monroe streets.

When Lehmann, who is chairman of the Board of Freeholders that wrote the new charter, told the audience that the new charter will give to every city employe the right to earn his daily bread without having to do the dirty work of the ward bosses, and will give every city official a chance to say to the bosses, "Get thee behind me Satan," the audience arose and cheered for several minutes.

Was in Fine Voice.

Charles C. Crone, president of the North St. Louis Citizen's Association, presided at the meeting, which was held under the auspices of the Charter Publicity Committee. Lehmann was in fine voice, and answered the criticisms that have been urged against the new charter in a manner that several times brought vigorous responses of approval from the audience.

Every important change in the form of city government provided by the new charter was explained and analyzed. When Lehmann finished his speech many persons in the audience rushed for the stage to congratulate him, and assure him that they had been won over by the logic of his arguments.

The Charter Publicity Committee has made preparations for another big meeting Friday night. Chairman Lehmann will deliver substantially the same speech.

Mr. Lehmann's speech delivered Thursday night was in part as follows:

"Some challenge the motives of the members of the board, others acknowledged that their motives were of the highest. But it is now too late to determine this matter upon any question of personal confidence. The work has been done, and if it is good work it is so, no matter what you may think of the members of the board. If it is bad work, it is bad, no matter what you may think of them. It is not an easy thing to frame a charter or constitution for the government of a city. Constructive work of any kind is always difficult. Criticism is always easy. Any man can find fault with a picture, but not any man can paint the picture.

"The Board of Freeholders were met upon the one side and upon the other by conflicting and irreconcilable suggestions as to the framework of the charter. We were told, upon the other hand: 'If you don't put in the initiative and the referendum, with the recall, we will beat your charter.' And we were told, upon the other hand: 'If you put in the civil service provision we will beat your charter.' Very little help of an affirmative kind came in, but we sat through it; we considered every proposition that was submitted. For months our meetings were open for every man who had any suggestions to make to come before us and make those suggestions in person.

Invited Controversy.

"Now, as to the first section of the proposed charter, I want to say that I take a peculiar responsibility upon my own shoulders. I wrote the section myself. I wrote it deliberately. I had it in mind from the beginning of our deliberations to the end, and I had a purpose in view, and that was to give to the city of St. Louis under this new charter every power that was possible to give to it under the Constitution and statutes of this State. And as I read it to you I want you to consider whether, as fairly as the English language can do so, it does not give to the city of St. Louis every power that a city could possibly possess.

Section 1, Article 1.

(Reading section 1, article 1 of charter proposed):

"'The inhabitants of the city of St. Louis, as its limits now are, or may hereafter be, defined by law, shall be and continue a body corporate by name 'The City of St. Louis,' and as such shall have perpetual succession, may sue and be sued, have a corporate seal which it may alter at pleasure, acquire property, real, personal and mixed, by any and all lawful means, within or without the limits of the city or of the State of Missouri, may hold, use or dispose of such property as the public interests may require, may own, lease or operate public utilities, and may do any act, exercise any power and render any service which contributes to the general welfare.'

"If there is any man that can confer power more freely than is conferred by that article, he is a man that understands the English language better than I do.

Points Out Confusion to Voters Under System of Long Ballots

"Article No. 2 is one that has been the subject of a great deal of criticism, and it provides that there shall be an election of a Mayor, a Comptroller, a President of the Board of Assessors, a Collector, President of the Council, and seven members of the Council; that is at one election, and eight at another. It leaves out and makes appointive the offices of the Treasurer, the Register, the Inspector of Weights and Measures, the Marshal and the President of the Board of Public Improvements. And we are criticised for that reason, that we have taken those offices out of the list of elective offices.

"I want to say to you if it could be done under the constitution and laws of this State, I would have taken out, if my fellow members of the board would have concurred with me, other offices under the charter still. There was a deliberate purpose in constituting what is known as the short ballot, to have few offices to vote for at an election; and why not, because we did not have confidence in the people? No, because we did have the confidence in them, believing their judgment could be depended on if their judgment was not distracted by having to consider too many different propositions."

Lehmann here called attention to the ticket at the November election and declared that the people voted down the 12 constitutional amendments because they wanted to make sure of defeating prohibition.

"The national ticket that you vote every four years is a short ticket—there are a good many names for presidential electors, but that signifies nothing, because they are all to vote for one particular man for President.

Short Ticket Favored.

"So in fact you vote for a president and vice-president and member of Congress. Your national ticket is short. You do not vote for a postmaster, secretary of the treasury, inspectors and surveyors; you vote for a president, who appoints all those different officers. And what is the result? There never yet was a man elected president of the United States who was not a man of high character and of great ability; and when we turn from the survey of the men that through 120 years have been presidents of the United States and look to the line of kings or of emperors in the old country over any similar period we can challenge the comparison, and we are proud to know that the elected of the people stand above in character and in capacity those who come in by divine right or by hereditary succession.

"So that we know we can trust the people when they have an opportunity for choice and when their minds are fixed upon what they do; but, when you have fifteen or twenty or twenty-five different offices to be filled, offices of varying importance, some you think not worth so much, some that are of the highest moment in the administration of public affairs, then the attention is distracted and the politician gets in his work. Now, what we want to do is to cut all of that out and to have the attention of the people when they come to the election centered upon the important officers, so that they can make an intelligent choice.

Quotes Dr. Hill.

"Dr. Hill has made criticism upon that and I quote from what he has been reported to have said in a report of a speech that was sent to me. Dr. Hill says—now, I want you to listen to this: 'It is a notorious fact that the minor officials heretofore elected by the people have always ranked higher in moral character than the Mayors we have had. Under the present system the political bosses have always picked out the best men they could, even for these minor offices, so as to help carry the ticket through.'

"That is the objection I have read. In other words, they have been giving you good clerks and—under cover of that—putting in bad Mayors.

"Now, we just want to reverse that proposition a little. We want you to put in good Mayors and he will appoint good clerks. And, so, we have just cut out the brush under which the politicians have been hiding, and we want the people to understand, when they come to an election, that there are only a few men for them to vote for, and every one of those offices is an important office, and they will want to get the right men for it; and when those men are in, giving them the power that is necessary to exercise the functions of the office, and let them appoint the clerks, bookkeepers and cashiers, just as you would do when you select the manager of a great business, allow him to select his help and hold him responsible for the proper conduct of that business.

Takes Up Article 3.

"Now, the next article is Article No. 3, and the main thing in that is that—and it is the principal change that is made and one you ought to consider, and consider seriously—and that is the change in the legislative branch of the government—instead of the Council and the House of Delegates, as we now have, the new charter provides a Council alone; abolishes the House of Delegates. The Council is to be elected at large. That had to be under the Constitution.

"We unanimously agreed upon the abolishment of the House of Delegates. Let me give you now the reasons which persuaded my own judgment to that end.

Lehmann declared that there was no real necessity for two legislative bodies in one city, where the people were all living in one section. In England, he said, the House of Commons represented the people, and the House of Lords the aristocracy. We have no aristocracy to require representation in the Municipal Assembly, he said. Under the two-house system in Congress the Senate represents the state, and the congressmen the districts.

Takes Up Bribe History.

Chairman Lehmann discussed at length the corruption of the Municipal Assembly, under the present charter. He took up the several big bribery deals—Central Traction, in which $250,000 was spent for a franchise; the Suburban deal in which $135,000 was deposited in safe deposit boxes for bribes, and the city lighting bribery. He said every man who wanted a permit or privilege of any kind had to pay the faithless representatives of the city to give it to him.

He pointed out how, under the Wells administration the Council, House of Delegates and Board of Public Improvements got into a quarrel over the garbage question, making it necessary for Mayor Wells to buy Chesley Island as a dumping ground for the garbage to protect the health of the people of the city. These conditions, the speaker declared, were the result of divided responsibility.

"You have good government in St. Louis today," he said, "as the result of extraordinary effort, but I believe if you contine under this old order of government five years will not have passed until the people again find their gossip of politics rife with rumors of corruption and themselves helpless to protest against it."

Lehmann called attention to the fact that when the School Board was comprised of district representatives the directors were put in jail for corruption, and now, under a board elected by the people at large, we have the best school buildings in the world, and the best administered schools in the country.

Answering Dr. Hill's criticism that the Freeholders gave the city power to issue bonds against the plants and earnings of utilities, Lehman said it was done deliberately to give the city the power to operate its utilities, if it ever becomes desirable.

He explained that this was done because the State Constitution limits the bonded indebtedness of the city to 5 per cent of its assessed valuation, and that it would never be possible, under the Constitution, for the city to own its street railways, electric lighting plants and other utilities unless it has the power to issue bonds upon the plants.

Not Big Cinch Charter.

"I suppose no two men would be agreed in what constitutes the 'Big Cinch.' There is a 'Big Cinch' not only here and now, but everywhere and at all times. Men are selfish and want to get something from somebody else, and get it for less than it is worth, if they can. That is the 'Big Cinch.'

"These are the men who are watching their opportunity to get something for less than it is worth and they are always watching for that because they think they can catch somebody off their guard.

"In recent times the Big Cinch wanted franchises and privileges to construct public utilities and they wanted them for less than they are worth. They criticise the charter and say we have made it hard to get a franchise from the city. Yes, we have, and we intended to make it hard to get a franchise from the city.

"Every franchise that was ever presented to you was drawn by the people who wanted it, and they were the ones who prescribed its terms. They wrote its provisions. Do you think the Big Cinch wants a hard time, or an easy time, getting a franchise?

"I told you, we have made it hard for them, and our opponents admit that we have made it hard. I leave it to you, when we have made it hard to get a franchise, whether we surrender to the 'Big Cinch' or whether we surrender to the public.

"I take some pride in the provisions of this charter, with respect to the public utilities. What was in there providing that the city may own, lease or operate public utilities is largely my handiwork. I had in mind the welfare and comfort of the people. I thought the charter ought to give the city the power to compel the street railway company to provide a convenient and comfortable way for the people to go from their homes to their work—so that their children could go to school without being packed like pigs in a car.

"I want to read the provisions of this charter with respect to the reservation and control of the public utilities of this city and ask you to compare them Now I want you to turn to page 13 of the charter. You will find:

"'To acquire, lease or operate public utilities, to grant to persons or corporations the right to construct, purchase or operate public utilities, and to regulate the construction, equipment, operation and service of all public utilities operating under franchises heretofore or hereafter granted, and the rates to be charged for such service, subject to the limitations and restrictions provided in article 27.'

"Now, some of these grammatical critics said something about the word 'acquire;' want to knew why we did not use the word 'construct.'

"To acquire means to get. Now, if you are going to get a thing and have a right to get it, you have got a right to get it in the only ways it can be gotten. There are three ways of getting something. You can get it by buying it, and you may build it, or you make take it from somebody that gives it to you.

"Now, you can get it just as well by building as buying, and I simply suggest that the gentlemen had better study the dictionary before they criticise that. When we say that the city may acquire, that it may get it, we say that it may get it by any means by which it may be lawfully gotten."

Reads Other Provisions.

Lehmann read from the charter the other sections relating to public utilities. He said the city had the power, under the new charter, of beginning the regulation of the public service corporation with its capitalization.

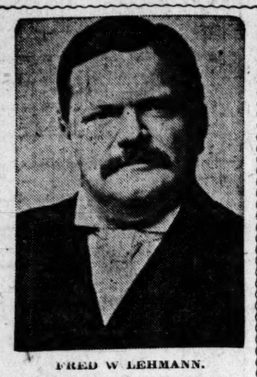

"I do not believe," he continued, "that we ought to grant franchises to corporations which start out with a watered capital, issuing bonds and capital stock which are fictitious, unloading them upon the people of this community, and then earning enough to pay dividends on them. I do not believe the city ought to consent to the issuance of water capitalization. Therefore, we have put powers in the hands of the Council to say how much it shall be capitalized for, and then we provide that the construction of the utility shall be under the direction of the Board of Public Improvements, and then we come to the operation, and provide the city shall prescribe the quality of the service that is to be rendered."

Discussing the Board of Public Improvements, Lehmann said it was the intention of the Freeholders to make it really the administrative body of the city, to be comprised of high-class men. He said to the board was given wide powers, purposely. With respect to issuing permits, Lehmann said the board would have, under ordinances, the right to issue them for excavations, awnings, etc., and that this would stop the jobbery in granting such privileges by the Municipal Assembly. Under the new charter any man entitled to a permit could get it without being held up, he said.

The board, he said, was clothed with power to carry out the charter provisions regulating utility corporations. The board would have the power to force such corporations to give the people a square deal, both as to rates and service. Lehmann declared that President Reber of the Board of Public Improvements and Street Commissioner Travilla both approved the new charter, although it would put Reber out of office.

Lehmann said the open powers conferred on the Mayor and other officials were not the powers that were abused. The hidden powers were the ones that were dangerous, such as the power of the political bosses over city officials. He then told how civil service would destroy the secret powers behind the city officials, drive the politicians out of the brush and enable city employes to work for the city instead of doing the dirty work of the bosses.

Best Points in Charter Brought Out By Fred W. Lehmann

FRED W LEHMANN.

THERE will be no round robin of irresponsibility under the new charter. If things go wrong at the city hall you can put your finger on the man responsible.

Dr. Hill Answered.

Dr. Hill says it is a notorious fact under the present charter that minor officials have always ranked higher than the Mayor, being nominated by the parties to carry the Mayor through. We want to reverse this order, and put in good mayors, and they will appoint good bookkeepers, cashiers and clerks.

We provided for the short ballot, deliberately, so that the people would know for whom they were voting. The national ballot is short—having the candidates only for President, Vice-President and Congress, and in the 120 years we have been electing presidents there has never been elected a man who was not of high character and great ability.

We abolished the House of Delegates to center legislative responsibility in the Council. The boodlers in the Municipal Assembly were not caught by any operation of the charter itself, but by the Circuit Attorney.

If you continue under the old charter it will not be five years until the air will be rife with rumors of corruption in the Municipal Assembly and the people will be helpless to protect themselves against it.

Praises School System.

Under district representation the schools of this city were administered by a board in jail at Jefferson City. Under the new plan, where the members are elected at large, we have the best school buildings in the world, and the best school administration in America.

The new charter gives the city full power to acquire, lease and operate public utilities.

They say this is a "Big Cinch" charter. There is a "Big Cinch," and it wants to get franchises for less than they are worth. We have made it hard to get franchises under the new charter. Do you think the "Big Cinch" wants it hard or easy to get franchises?

To acquire means to get; to acquire a public utility means to get it by any lawful means—by building, buying or by gift.

The new charter makes it impossible for utility corporations to water stock. We put that provision in because we did not believe the city of St. Louis should be a partner in a fraud upon the people.

We believe the people ought to get a square deal from the utility corporations—and we have given the Board of Public Improvements the power to force them to give the people a square deal.

No Fear of Bosses.

Under the new charter city officials will have no fear of the secret power of ward bosses.

City employes ought not to be made dependent upon party bosses for their right to earn their daily bread.

Civil service will take the city government out of the hands of the bosses. It is my opinion that city employes would rather be working faithfully for the city than doing the dirty work of the bosses.

Charter critics say the initiative and referendum will make it easy to correct mistakes. We don't want easy government. We want a serious government that weighs on the consciences of the people, compelling them to consider every problem.

The recall is the divorce of the city government. We did not make it too easy of operation, because you know easy marriage makes easy divorce.

Like U. S. Constitution.

The first section of the new charter, the general welfare clause, gives the city every power possible under the constitution and statutes, and is sufficient to cover any lapses that may occur elsewhere.

The Board of Freeholders had confidence in the judgment of the people to settle every proposition right, when they were not confused by too many propositions.

Let's be honest with ourselves—we voted down the 12 constitutional amendments last fall—not because they were all bad—but because we wanted to make sure on one proposition we would not put the yes in the wrong place.

When the people have to vote on 25 or 30 candidates, attention is distracted and the political boss gets in his work.

We abolished the House of Delegates because we wanted to abolish division of responsibility—for when you divide power among bad men they will find each other out and get together.

When the central traction bill was being put through one of the newspapers exposed the bribery, and was threatened with indictment by a judge on the bench—not much encouragement to the newspaper. But the job went on, and when the Circuit Attorney probed it and found $250,000 had been paid for the franchise it was too late—the boodlers had escaped under the statute of limitations.

SLEEPLESSNESS

Its Cause and Remedy

Do you know what it is to lie awake nights, fidgety, restless, tossing about, counting 100 backwards, or sheep jumping over a fence, all in a vain endeavor to lose yourself in slumberland and get the rest which you so much need.

No one, unless they have been troubled with insomnia, can begin to realize its horrors and how wearing it is.

In nine cases out of ten it is simply a case of overworked nerves or derangement of the digestive system. Thousands of such cases are being cured by Vinol. As a proof we quote from a letter recently received from Marion, Ind.:

"I could not sleep nights, was rundown, nervous, had no appetite and was all discouraged. Vinol made me well after all other remedies had failed. I sleep splendidly, and have gained in strength." Mrs. L. E. Heinlein. (We guarantee this testimonial to be genuine).

We ask every person who suffers from sleeplessness or who is nervous or run-down to try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that their money will be returned if it does not help them. Vinol contains no drugs or oil, and agrees with everyone. Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., St. Louis, Mo.

THE MUNICIPAL COURTS BILL.

The one objection to the bill introduced into the Legislature for the reformation and modernization of the justices' courts is that it is not to go into effect until January, 1913. This is by way of avoiding the opposition of the justices whose terms will not expire until that time. This would presumably be potent opposition. Every justice of the peace, it seems, is the motive power of an effective little political machine. To these aggregated machines St. Louis must bow and permit a delay of two years in securing a momentous reform.

Except for the two years' delay the bill approved by the St. Louis Bar Association meets the requirements of an urgent situation. It will abolish an antiquated system of petty courts which have become ludicrous means to the attainment of justice. It will end real abuses. It will dissolve alliances between money sharks, installment sales men and constables by which the courts are turned into collection agencies for the oppression of the poor. It will bring into existence an effective court system where small litigants may secure a proper hearing and the increased jurisdiction will relieve the crowded dockets of the courts of record. It will call to the bench of the new courts trained lawyers and bring emoluments which will tempt competent men to seek the positions.

Many cities have had such housecleanings and always with universal satisfaction. It has been too long delayed here. The bill should be passed and if a way can be found it should be given effect before 1913.

Vote for St. Louis; smash the spoils bosses.

The difference between the old charter and the new charter is clear; the old charter represents St. Louis standing still and the new charter represents St. Louis going forward.

WOMAN'S NINE-HOUR DAY.

The woman's employment bill, introduced in the Missouri Senate, provides for a nine-hour day for women workers employed in "manufacturing and mechanical establishments, laundries and workshops." The option of working "overtime," regardless of compensation, is denied to women employes. Violation of this provision of the proposed law is to be held as a misdemeanor on the part of the employer or his agent against whom, upon conviction, a fine is assessed.

The constitutionality of such a law, against which the point of class legislation was first urged, has been upheld by the Supreme Court of the United States. The opinion in the test case brought before that tribunal postulated that "The physical well-being of women becomes an object of public interest and care, in order to preserve the strength and vigor of the race."

The compulsory advent of women into the industrial arena, occasioned by economic evolution, has fronted civilization with problems that were unknown when women were engaged in the tasks at which women sing. It is realized that those problems cannot be solved by the rigid formulae of economics; that these are questions to which sociology, in gentler mood and prophetic solicitation, must address itself.

It happens, however, that 30 other states which have limited the working day of women to nine hours have found the plan to be economically sound; that there has been no shrinkage in the volume of work done, while the quality has noticeably improved. With this incorporated in the brief it is supposed that the last objection of the practician is silenced.

Vote for St. Louis; smash the predatory interests.

COLLEGES AND POETS.

When the self-made captain of industry, implanting an audible O K upon his own creative achievement, waves the utility of a college education into the penumbra of innocuous desuetude, gentlemen of academic degree are wont to appraise such verdict as another instance of boorish complacency. But when the president of a college, bred in the very purple of polite learning, indicts, by questions, the philosophy of the higher education, then here is heresy that must be told in Gath and bruited about in the streets of Ascalon.

Dr. Mackintosh, head of Wabash College, is the inquisitor. Boldly emerging from the timidity of phi-beta-kappa tradition, the Doctor, with Hashimura curiosity, inquires to know, separately and severally, as follows:

Would James Whitcomb Riley have been a poet if he had been educated in the high school of Crawfordsville, Indiana, and graduated from Wabash College?

Would he have become a poet had there been no opposition to his writing verse?

Would logic's problems, which he needs must have studied, have closed his eyes to the frost upon the pumpkin and the fodder in the shock?

From the newspaper reports we are compelled to infer that the Doctor's questions left his audience in a stunned and palsied silence. Not one in all that assemblage of native Indianans had the temerity to arise and asseverate what would have been the effect of a college course upon the poetry of Riley. And where Indiana is speechless upon a proposition in pure literature, where will one be found to speak, or even whisper?

We gather that what Dr. Mackintosh was trying to establish was that the colleges have not served to increase the tribe of poets. Whether that is a conviction or a vindication may be, like Riley's poetry, largely a matter of taste.

Glenn Curtiss, the aviator, made a new record yesterday, that is more astonishing and important than any of the record-breaking feats of a year. He landed on the water, sailed in the water and rose from the water. If the aeroplane is to become a war machine, this feat completes the catalogue of its qualities.

THE SPOILS ISSUE.

Mr. Lehmann did well to inform the public concerning the threats made by leaders of a local partisan organization to defeat the charter if a civil service provision were embodied in the instrument. It emphasizes the political issue upon which the party bosses and their henchmen are fighting the charter. Regardless of public interests they are trying to defeat the code for the purpose of retaining personal and partisan power through the spoils system.

It is short-sighted policy on the part of political leaders to oppose a great measure of municipal progress designed to promote public interests in order to serve selfish personal and partisan ends. It reveals the real objects of party organization. It exposes the insincerity of the professions of partisan bosses.

If the charter is defeated the responsibility will rest with the party leaders who are using all their power and influence to defeat it. The great mass of intelligent voters who are seeking freedom from corrupt bosses and opportunity for municipal advancement through the adoption of the new charter, will recognize the responsibility of party leaders for its defeat. Confronted by the old hopeless struggle with the obstacles to progress and the forces of greed and inefficiency, there will be a tremendous reaction in the minds of the people of St. Louis. They will hold the men who will have led them into the ditch to accountability for their leadership.

No political party in St. Louis can win success without the support of the intelligent independent progressive elements, who are devoted to the public welfare and who regard parties as instrumentalities to serve public ends. These elements demand an accounting of party organizations on their attitude towards public welfare measures.

Democratic leaders who oppose the charter because it strikes down the spoils system and abolishes the House of Delegates will be held to personal account. But the burden of responsibility for the defeat of the charter—if it shall fail—will be charged to the Republican organization. The Republican party is in power in St. Louis. It is the dominant party. At the recent election St. Louis was the one place where the Republicans showed increased strength. The municipal administration is Republican. The party is responsible for the character of the administration and for the honesty and efficiency of the government.

If the Republican administration is unfit to control the government under the new charter the party is responsible for it. If the Mayor is unworthy to be entrusted with the larger powers and responsibilities of the mayoralty, if he is incapable of performing the new duties placed upon his office—as the men in control of the Republican organization assert—the Republican party is responsible for him; the party nominated and elected him.

But no one is deceived as to the real reason for the opposition of the Republican organization. Distrust of the Mayor's capacity is merely a public excuse to cover private partisan reasons. These reasons are two:

1. The preservation of the spoils system for the reward of party workers and the maintenance of machine bossism.

2. A factional fight with the Mayor over the division of the spoils and the control of the party organization.

For these petty, personal, sordid and partisan reasons the Republican organization in this city will go on record as opposed to a great measure of progress and reform. If the charter is defeated the party will be branded in history as the party of reaction under whose administration and through whose opposition a progressive municipal code was rejected.

We need not ask intelligent, honest Democrats whether they stand with the spoils bosses who have wrecked their organization and sapped the strength and usefulness of their party.

But we do ask intelligent, honest Republicans if they want their party organization to be identified with the forces of reaction, corruption, bossism and greed; we ask them if they want responsibility for the defeat of the movement for a new St. Louis charged to their party organization on account of a passing spoils fight and a desire to profit by patronage.

If the next spring election shall be held under the old charter with the spoils bosses and the franchise interests in control, how will the party justify its record? With what face can its organization leaders seek popular support?

The belief that the reciprocity arrangement with Canada has a small chance to pass, despite President Taft's recommendation, is doubtless based on reality. The stand-pat disposition to throw the blame for opposition on insurgent Republicans and so prove the hypocrisy of their anti-tariff attitude is merely an interesting feature of the situation. The reason why the measure will not pass, if there is any, is that there could be no more striking confession of the extortionate character of the Payne-Aldrich law. The Republicans are not prepared to make such a confession. If the tariff on Canadian products or any other products is to be lowered, the Democrats will have to do it.

READ LEHMANN'S SPEECH.

You should read Solicitor-General Lehmann's speech on the new charter. He will inform you of its merits; he will show you how and why it was made.

Opponents of the new charter ask why not amend the old charter. It is easier to add improvements to an automobile than to make an automobile out of an old wagon.

Vote for St. Louis; smash the boodle bosses.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Good Charter Points.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I favor the new charter because St. Louis is a large and progressive city and needs the legislation authorized by this organic instrument.

I favor the new charter because our best citizens formulated it in the interest of the people.

The old charter met the wants of St. Louis 30 years ago, but is obsolete today in meeting the demands of present conditions.

The new charter authorizes public ownership of public utilities, a great scheme in the interest of the people in protecting the public against monopoly.

The new charter creates a civil service commission from whose approved lists the heads of departments must select their employes, thus destroying the spoils system and substituting the merit system.

The Mayor is given considerable power in his appointments, but the power can be taken away by amending the charter in this respect. It would be folly to defeat the new charter which contains so much good and fall back on the old charter which does not meet the demands of those who oppose the new charter.

St. Louis, Jan. 27. GEORGE W. HARRIS.

Boodling Under the Old Charter.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I am surprised to hear of any opposition to the proposed new charter. Hon Henry T. Mudd and myself represented St. Louis County in the Legislature when the city limits was Spring avenue, and Mr. Mudd was the first to suggest the separation. Then the city got the present charter which has been a good thing for boodlers and grafters, but bad for the advancement of the city. Every franchise had to be bought and manufacturers could not even get switching from the railroad tracks across an alley without paying for same, and many would not stand for such and moved to East St. Louis and Madison and to other cities. I believe if the city had had this proposed charter for the last 30 years we could be boasting of two million population. T. T. HATHAWAY.

New Charter for New St. Louis.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Almost unanimously the intelligent, enlightened and disinterested public opinion of this city is in favor of the adoption of the new charter. But will that opinion prevail at the forthcoming election?

The protestations of the objectors remind me of the objections made to the plan of Plato's model republic. The charter doesn't take sufficient care of certain individual interests or groups of interests. But that is nothing new, either in constructive legislation or in architecture. The Board of Freeholders stands in good company in this respect. Many flaws have been picked by critics in the Declaration of Independence. It even seems that the omnipotent creator failed to build the world with sufficient perfection to satisfy all the interested parties. Why some of the carping critics who violently censure the new charter could, if they were given a chance, materially improve the Decalogue.

The old charter was for the past; "let the dead past bury its dead." The new charter is for the future; let us adopt it as a constitution for the new St. Louis. JOSEPH FLYNN.

COME OUT FOR THE CHARTER.

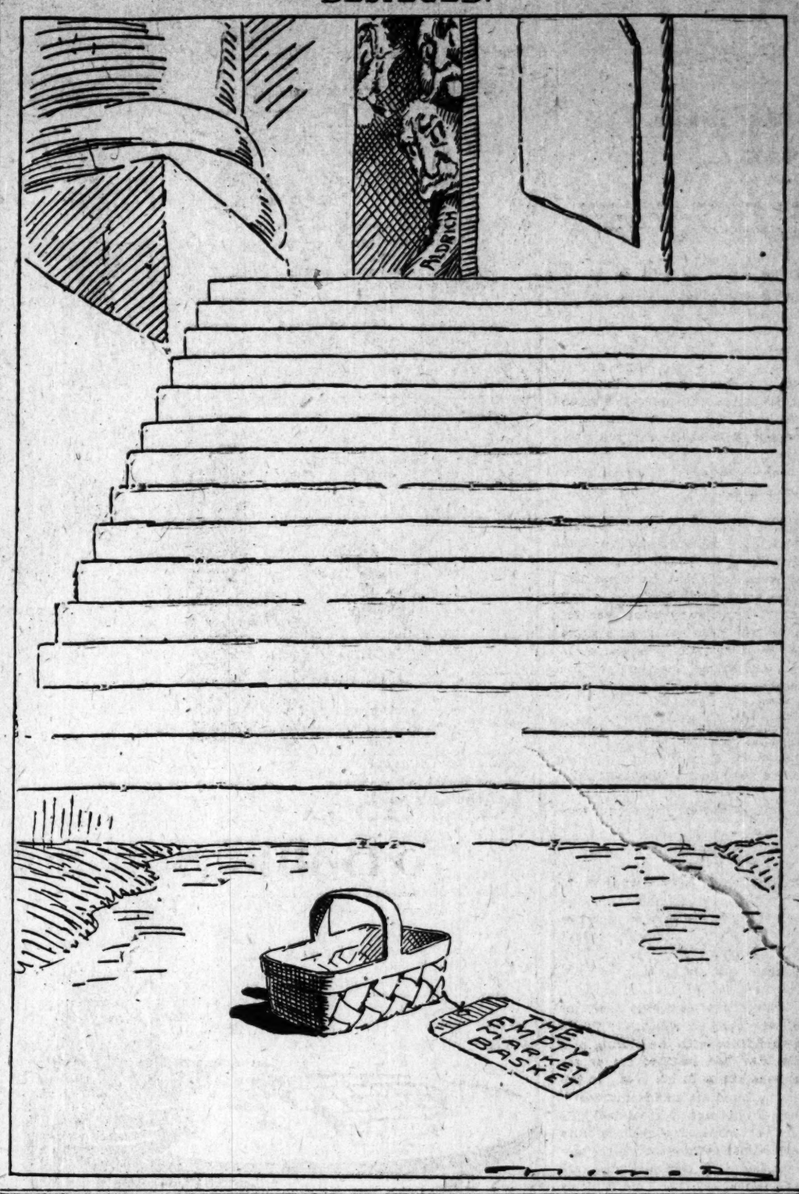

W. M. R. in the St. Louis Mirror.

I record my sincere and deliberately formed conviction that the new charter is better than the old, in that it simplifies government by concentration of authority and location of responsibility and provides popular check upon officials who may be derelict in their duties. Franchises are safeguarded by the referendum and boodling is rendered useless. Spoilsism is reduced to a minimum. Improvement is unshackled of red tape. The new charter is not the best possible charter; if we wait for that—for a charter that will please everyone—we shall never get a charter. The new charter is an advance. Because it does not advance far enough, shall we refuse to move at all? Are not some of the reformers like Lewis Carroll's creation who had to run at full speed in order to stay where they are? And are they not living in Queer street when they fight side by side against the charter with the representatives of the interests which do not want the referendum and the recall? When reformers and the machines work together, the reformers are fighting their own reforms. Both the political machines are against the new charter, and when we find that to be the case, we know the influence that binds them in a common motive—the interests.

Knowing what evil there was in the old charter, it seems to me the new one strikes at the evils while retaining the good. It is more democratic first, and it makes for efficiency, secondarily, which is the true order of desirability of those two qualities. I believe that the opposition to the new charter is more vocal than the support, yet I believe that there are more supporters than opponents. The question is whether the supporters will come out on election day. They should come out, for they may be sure that every selfish, inciv'c, political and business interest will be active in conjunction with the irreconcilable and unappeasable "whole-hog" reformers. If we don't get the referendum on franchises now, we won't get it for a decade and then every franchise will have been grabbed. If we don't shut out the spoilsmen now they'll see we shan't have a chance again in a coon's age.

This new charter is an honest attempt by honest men—yes, even by Japtha D. Howe, who is not innocent of idealism—to give us a code that will facilitate progress without deflecting the benefits thereof to the exploiters of the public. It is not a rich man's charter. Neither is it a poor man's charter. It is an anti-graft, anti-privilege charter so far as it goes, and it goes leagues beyond the old code. It will not insure honesty in officials. Nothing can. But it brings officials into the light; it prevents them from shifting responsibility until it falls in some no-man's land; it strives for the merit system; its operation is such that dishonesty must soon disclose itself. The new charter should be adopted. And it should be adopted because its provisions are such that whatever defects may be revealed in it may be easily remedied. The fight on the charter, in the light of the concessions made to the chief fighting element, shows that, when necessary, amendment will not be difficult. So I say in all earnestness, vote for the new charter, because it is an almost incalculable advance upon the old in the direction—here's the fundamental point!—of democracy and efficiency. It is above all things else, a charter for the interests of the many and against the special interests of the few.

BESIEGED.

AN EXTRA SESSION, MR. TAFT.

From today's New York World.

The Beef Trust's representative in the Senate of the United States is Mr. William Lorimer. For many years he was the Beef Trust's spokesman in the House. Unfortunately for him, when the Legislature of Illinois promoted him to the Senate several of the members who voted for him were found to have bribe money in their pockets.

A committee of the Senate has made a pretense of investigating this scandal, and the Senate itself is now making a pretense of considering Mr. Lorimer's title to and fitness for a seat in that body. If the Beef Trust and its sympathetic associate trusts have their way about it, action upon so disagreeable a subject will be postponed as long as possible.

Several of the leaders of the Beef Trust are now under criminal indictment. Thus far their well-paid lawyers have not troubled themselves about a defense. They are fighting for delay. Every move that they have made has been for the purpose of gaining time and confusing the issue.

What is true of the Lorimer bribery and the criminal prosecution of the trust is true also of the popular demand that food be untaxed. The Beef Trust is one of the chief beneficiaries of the taxes upon food, but it makes no defense of them. All it asks is delay. It has great faith in the virtue of a tariff commission. It knows that congresses which sit in presidential years do not as a rule do much work.

It is through no accident that events have thus brought the Beef Trust so conspicuously into the limelight. Its extremity results from the logic of a bad situation. The false system, political, industrial and economic, under which it has operated, has broken down. If justice is to be done, its agents will be expelled from the Senate, its chief officers will be punished, and the extortionate taxes upon competing meats, under which it has grown rich, will be repealed.

This program must necessarily be incomplete without a special session of Congress in March. How can the President refuse to act?

A Scientific Theory.

From the Pittsburg Post.

"Now they claim that the human body contains surphur."

"In what amount?"

"O, in varying quantities."

From the Washington Star.

"Do you believe in using words of one syllable?" asked the student of politics.

Progress, noun. A dream.

Catch word; a charade;
Any little thing remaining

SOME SAMPLE SPEECHES.

Anti-Charterite: Dear friends, Lend me your reason. The Board of Freeholders labored with this charter 18 months. What was it doing all that time? The immortal Constitution of the United States was prepared in four months, and the Constitution of Missouri was framed in three months. Four months goes into 18 months four and one-half times. Is the charter four and one-half times as good as the Constitution of the United States? No, my friends; it is not. It ought to be, but it isn't. There is a strange loss of time and value in there somewhere. Now let us divide again: Three goes into 18 six times. Is the charter six times as good as the Constitution of Missouri? No, my friends; not on your life it isn't. So there! Another discrepancy. Another unaccountable loss. Is the charter, then, what it ought to be? No, my friends, it is not. The figures convict it. Figures do not lie. You can figure it out for yourself—four into 18, and three into 18. I thank you, my friends. You have been very kind.

* * *

Pro-Charterite: Sweet friends. Do not let anybody deceive you. It is true the Board of Freeholders toiled over the charter four and one-half times as long as the founders of the republic were occupied with the constitution of the United States. It is also true that they were laboring over it six times as long as those immortal pioneers who established the State of Missouri were engaged in the framing of our State constitution. But there is nothing strange about this, my friends. A charter crank is four and one-half times as much of a crank as a Federal constitution crank is, and he is six times as cranky as a State constitution crank is. Therefore it took the Board of Freeholders four and one-half times as long to make the charter crank-proof as it took the founders of the republic to make the constitution of the United States crank-proof, and it took them six times as long to make the charter crank-proof as it took the framers of the constitution of Missouri to make that instrument crank-proof. That is all there is to that, my friends. You can also figure that for yourself. I thank you.

THE LEAN YEARS.

Let us do the farmers of Adams and Vermillion counties the credit to believe that they are not really dishonest, but that the discovery that they have been selling their votes reveals nothing more than the extent to which Republican rule has reduced them. A farm is not like anything else. It is an isolated place enjoying none of those temporary stays and supports with which a city continually buoys up its constituent parts. A farm either rises or falls as a separate structure, leaning upon nothing, supporting nothing. It is therefore on the farm that the pinch of a departed prosperity has been most acute, and it is there, in consequence, that the most desperate efforts have been put forth to keep body and soul together. As a result, we discover that a great many farmers in Vermillion County and virtually all of those in Adams County have been compelled, as a last resort, to sell their votes. Knowing the rugged honesty of the farmer, we can easily imagine his emaciation before he did that. It is the most damning of all the counts against the Republican theory of government. We have hitherto considered that the case of the Cairo purse-snatcher who was lynched for stealing a handbag containing 39 cents indicated the scarcity of money beyond anything else, but the news from Vermillion and Adams counties discounts it.

When can we vote again?

JANUARY 27.

Only four days now remaining
In the present pass and hot
Till we ascertain if reason
Did us any good or not.

If Mr. Taft will quit feeding the elephant long enough to give the consumer a bite it will gratify a lot of people.

But being for the ship newspaper subsidy is quite another thing.

WHAT HE TOOK WITH HIM.

From the Shreveport Times.

The announcement that the great packer, Michael Cudahy, left an estate of only $11,000,000, occasioned some surprise. This is now explained by the statement that for several years past Mr. Cudahy quietly gave much money to people who really needed it, on condition that they should not disclose the name of their benefactor.

And that was fine.

An English nobleman wrote his own epitaph, as follows: "What I spent, I had; what I saved, I lost; what I gave away, I took with me."

From the Pittsburg Post.

"Can't we patch up this coolness between you and Wombat? Is it very serious?"

"Yes, it is. I promised to pay him what I owed him on the first of the month and then couldn't."

When mouth is affected, remove the cheesy substance, then use another stiff feather and cover that sore with creolin. If trouble is in throat hold mouth wide open, then use small rounded stick and scrape that cheesy substance away from the opening of the windpipe. Next use feather and apply creolin to that sore. Dry pox getting enough permanganate of potash in the drinking water to color it pink you will do much to prevent the spread of the disease among your unaffected-appearing flock.

THE STORY OF A JILT

By Herself.

SYNOPSIS.

The Jilt, a Kentucky girl, after a series of unlucky love affairs, goes to a convent hospital to care for her sick aunt. There she meets a young house doctor on whom she makes an instant impression. But, having resolved to be a priest, he puts away all thought of love.

CHAPTER IV.

WHEN I had done I suddenly grew frightened and began to cry. And he began divinely to comfort me.

"There, child, there!" he murmured consolingly. "It's all right now. It's all right. You've got it off your mind and that's good for you. Now don't cry. You didn't mean to do wrong, anyway. You were just unconsciously hunting for the right man. And you didn't find him. That's all. Of course you've hurt other people, but you didn't mean to, I'm sure. And now you're sorry. It's good to be sorry—that helps to wipe sin out. But you mustn't think yourself too wicked. For you were just hunting for the right man!"

"I was hunting for the right man," I echoed eagerly. "I never knew before what made me do such things. But that was it! I'm not wicked after all, am I?"

"No," he assured me, "you've never been wicked. But," and he paused for an earnest look at me, "but—promise me that you won't hunt for him any more. My dear young lady, let him hunt for you. You're worth it!"

"I might have felt myself rebuked as unmaidenly but for those last words. But they were so freighted with respectable tribute that I didn't mind the frank advice accompanying them. I didn't mind being seen for the questing creature that I was. Indeed, he had made the quest a noble thing to me, and I seized upon his justification of my light loves and made myself believe it. I might go forward without shame, seeking my true prince. I might—if Dr. Ray were not exacting a promise from me. But there he stood, waiting inexorably for me to give it.

"I looked up at him and saw how the sunshine rested on his rich head and glowed in the translucent depths of his eyes. I loved the look of him. For the moment I thought I loved him! And the only possible bond between us then was the promise he asked of me. Suddenly I saw it binding him rather than me."

"I never did find him, you know," I said earnestly. "Are you sure he'll find me?"

"Sure!"

"Then I'll promise," I said.

But when I went up to my cool, little gray room, conventional in its spare simplicity, I thought less of the promise, so seriously given, than of Dr. Ray's sunlit head. And I was less glad of my absolution as a sinner than of the fact that, in my white embroidered gown, I looked 19 rather than 25. That gown, so innocent with its hand-wrought forget-me-nots, had been an inspir tion. I couldn't have been confessional and penitent in anything else!

After that I wore nothing but simple white frocks and wide hats; for clothes, in their time, play many parts and they them so effectually that a man't heart with an outworn gown or his confidence with the closing of a rosy sunshade. I wasn't sure whether Dr. Ray had justified me or my forget-me-not gown, so I was careful not to separate us in his eyes. In tailor-made broadcloth and orchids he might have found me an adventuress!

I managed to keep myself—or my gowns?—in his sight a great deal. He ran away from he no more. I think he felt a sort of personal responsibility toward me after my "confession," and we sometimes sat together in the garden, talking as I had never talked to any man before. It was such good talk—so full of ideals and duty and charity. And I must say that I did it nicely—very nicely, considering how new an accomplishment such conversation was for me. I almost believed in myself. And he believed in me, not wisely, but too well.

He believed in me so thoroughly that he finally asked me to help him in a charity case of his. The details of how I acted the unfamiliar part of ministering angel in the rather squalid home of one Maggie O'Reilly are scarcely pertinent. Nor would the visit be worth mentioning at all, except for a mistake which Maggie O'Reilly made as we were leaving her ugly, clean little house.

"Sure," she said, "but you're the lucky man, Dr. Ray—bless the swate face of her."

Dr. Ray and I started homeward together with that significant speech of Maggie's thrilling electrically between us. We felt it like a living wire, sounding its message to each of us. And because it said so much, because it fairly shrieked its meaning aloud, we were miserably silent.

"You've been wonderful!" he said gratefully.

"I am going to be a priest. But if I were free I would ask you to help me always. I would ask you to make me the lucky man Maggie thinks me. Do you know that, Sylvia?"

"I know that you are the right man!" I answered.

He stared at me and his face went white. "My God!" he breathed.

Diplomatists' American Wives.

GERMANY boasts two American members of its Legation—members with American wives. The Ambassador, Count von Bernstorff, utterly disregarded the old Bismarckian theory that "a foreign wife could not possibly help a German diplomat" when he chose as his bride Miss Jeanne Luckmeyer of New York City. Before her marriage the Countess had passed much of her time abroad, and met her husband when he was attached to the German Embassy in Paris. The Count's diplomatic duties have taken him to various parts of the globe, and possibly the secret of the Countess' success as hostess lies in the fact that she has had so much experience.

She has lived successively in Paris, Rome, Cairo and Washington. She is a fine looking woman, with just a touch of silver in her brown hair. Her gowns are in exquisite taste, and her charm as hostess is second to none in Washington. The German Embassy is a home-like place, with everything combining elegance and, at the same time, comfort. The daughter of the household, Countess Louise-Alexandra, resembles her mother in many characteristics. She takes great delight in her social duties and is always surrounded by a large circle of young friends.

From the Netherlands and Belgium come ministers with wives of our own land. Mme. Loudon, before she became the representative woman from the Netherlands, was Miss Lydia Eustace of New Orleans. Her father was at one time United States Senator from Louisiana, and a sister of hers, equally beautiful and charming, is the wife of Josef Hofmann, the pianist. Countess Buisserat (Miss Caroline Story) was one of the greatest belles in the army and residential set of Washington. Her father is Gen. John P. Story, U. S. A., retired, and before her marriage she figured prominently in the society world. The Count de Buisserat has only been representing his country in Washington a short time. His predecessor, Baron Mandelslohe, with his beautiful American wife (daughter of Powell Clayton, former Ambassador to Mexico), was stationed at the capital for nine years. The Baroness was devoted to her home and handsome children, and there was much regret when she left the city.

The French Legation in Washington has three beautiful representative American women. Mme. Jusserand, the wife of the Ambassador, was, before her marriage, Miss Elsie Richards. Her father was an American banker in Paris, where she was born, yet her many American connections cause her to be regarded as a native of this country. Mme. Jusserand is very popular in diplomatic circles, entertaining lavishly and taking an active part in social gaieties of the Washington season.

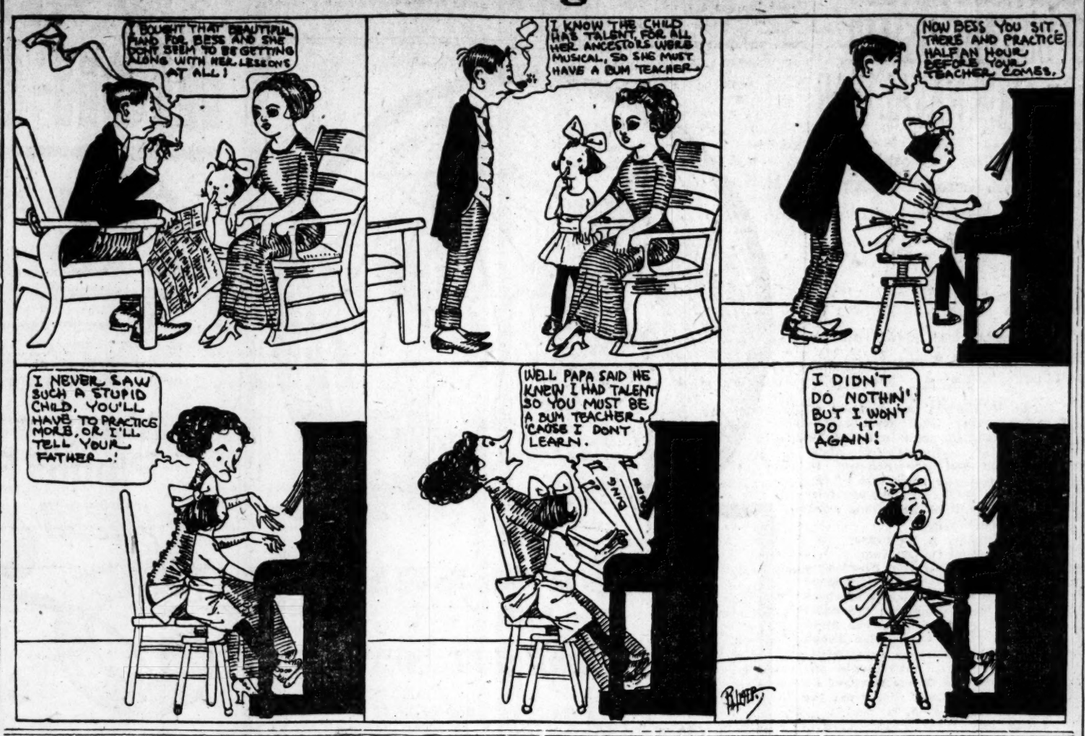

The Viscountess Benoist d'Azy, whose husband is Naval Attache, came originally from Chicago, where she was formerly known as Miss Caroline Jones. Her wedding in 1894 was a brilliant affair, and was described as the union of two of the handsomest young people that ever contracted an international marriage. The Viscountess is described as the spiritueile member of Washington's smart set. Her charm has been the cause of much comment; in more than one instance she has figured in the accounts as "a Frenchwoman." She is witty and clever, and entertains many interesting guests during the months that she is at the Capitol, and her affairs are always largely attended.

Then there is the Countess de Chambrun, who has a host of noted relatives and relatives-in-law. Her brother is Congressman Nicholas Longworth, who married Miss Alice Roosevelt. The Countess spent her girlhood days in Ohio, but since her marriage has lived abroad, and her two children are typically French. Another American who formerly figured in the diplomatic set was Miss Ivy Langham, whose husband, Viscount Faramond, preceded Viscount d'Azy as Naval Attache. Another of the Langham girls is the wife of Baron Speck von Sternburg.—Strand.

Here Is a Puzzle to Baffle Solvers

I HAVE a quantity of blocks. Each one has a surface of 4 2-7 inches by 6 2-13 inches. I want to put these blocks together so as to make a perfect oblong, the longer side of which shall be twice the length of the shorter side. The measurements of this oblong must be an exact number of inches—that is, no fraction of an inch in the length of any side. What is the smallest oblong I can make?

The Mortgage Note Problem.

One thousand dollars borrowed on a mortgage note bearing 4.3 per cent is to be repaid in three annual equal payments. What is the amount of each payment? The answer given in the Post-Dispatch last Saturday was $362.40.

Problem, Post-Dispatch, St. Louis, Mo.:

I WISH to defend computing only simple interest on the Mortgaging Problem.

$362 divided by $1.086 equals $333.33 1-3, plus 2 years' interest, $362

2. Mortgage notes draw simple interest, even when foreclosure is necessary for collection.

3. This is a special arrangement whereby the payments, principal and interest, are to be the same "not equivalent" as paying one-third of the principal and accrued interest each year.

4. If he pays more than one-third of the principal the first year and is charged compound interest on the remaining notes, he should be repaid in the same manner on the sum in excess of $333.33 1-3, which is $347.36, or an excess of $14.02 1-3 (credit him with the compound interest at 4.3 per cent for two years—$1.22309).

In other words, this very point reduces the payment from $362.40, principal and interest, to $362, principal and interest. I, therefore, think with fairness to both parties the notes should be $347.07 due in one year, with interest at 4.3 per cent; $333.33 1-3 due in two years, simple interest at 4.3 per cent, and $320.63 due in three years, simple interest at 4.3 per cent.

$333 1-3 at 4.3 per cent, 3 years 14 1-3

Then $86 is the amount of interest that would have been paid had each note have been for an equal amount. We now wish to arrange the three notes so that each note, with its interest, when due, will be the same amount.

I- am aware that some textbooks and many mathematicians will uphold computing compound interest, but is it right?

Progress.

Aviator: You bet! If they grant us the patent on our new engine by 1914, and we get rid of the infringements by 1925, and finish our suit with the Highflier Co. which is returnable in 1954, we'll show the world what an aeroplane really is.—Puck.

Hair

Everybody Has Hair, or Ought to Have; Some People Are Bald and Needn't Be.

The claim has never been made in this paper or anywhere else that Lorrimer's Excelsior Hair Tonic will grow hair on every bald head. But when hundreds of people have voluntarily testified, in writing, that they actually were bald, and after using Lorrimer's Excelsior Hair Tonic faithfully that their hair has come back, the whole world should be told of it. Here's one letter; we have hundreds like it. They're all on file in the Lorimer Institute, Baltimore:

I had a small bald spot. Same is now entirely covered with hair. In fact, my hair never looked more beautiful, and that is saying a great deal. I am not a young woman, have no dandruff. The Hair Tonic (Lorrimer's) makes the hair so soft and silky—in fact, I can't find words to express what I would like to say. I tell everyone I know about it. I intend to keep it on hand all the time to use as a dressing.

The Quickest, Simplest Cough Cure.

Easily and Cheaply Made at Home. Saves You $2.

This recipe makes a pint of cough syrup—enough to last a family a long time. You couldn't buy as much or as good cough syrup for $2.50.

Simple as it is, it gives almost instant relief and usually stops the most obstinate cough in 24 hours. This is partly due to the fact that it is slightly laxative, stimulates the appetite and has an excellent tonic effect. It is pleasant to take—children like it. An excellent remedy, too, for whooping cough, sore lungs, asthma, throat troubles, etc.

Mix 1 pint of granulated sugar with ½ pint of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents' worth) in a pint bottle and add the Sugar Syrup. It keeps perfectly. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

Pine is one of the oldest and best known remedial agents for the throat membranes. Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, and is rich in guaiacol and all the other natural healing elements. Other preparations will not work in this formula.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Mr. Jarr

Adopts the Idea of Paying More Than He Can Afford for What He Doesn't Want

Written for the Post-Dispatch

By Roy L. McCardell.

MR. JARR had been sent for a dozen lemons for the lemonade and claret punch that was to be served at his birthday party.

That Mrs. Jarr had forgotten them up to the last minute, when she had remembered all else, shows that fate was to take part in the party. Had sugar been forgotten, or cake or candy or sliced ham or tongue for the sandwiches, all would have been well—but lemons!

Had it been sugar Mr. Jarr would have gone to the grocery, had it been cake or ham or tongue he would have gone to the bakery and the delicatessen shop, but it being lemons he went to Gus's cafe on the corner for them. He could have obtained them at the fruit store or the grocery, but he never thought of that. He went to Gus'.

"What you want a dozen lemons for? It's too many; I ain't got 'em to spare," said Gus.

"It's for his birthday party tonight," said Rangle. "He's going to hand himself some lemons."

"This was a joke, and all present recognized it as such, and laughed heartily. As for Rangle, he had no business to be there, either. He had been sent out by his wife to the little dry goods and dressmakers' supply store in the middle of the block for a paper of hairpins, and to hurry back.

"My! A birthday, ain't we going to have a little drink on that?" asked Slavinski, the glazier. "Let's chuck the dice to see who buys the drinks to celebrate the birthday, because at such a time nobody should be stingy."

"The feller what has a birthday, he should set 'em up," said Muller, the grocer.

"The house should do it," said Mr. Rangle, coming to the rescue.

"You're a nice bunch of sports!" said Mr. Jarr indignantly. "I'll buy."

But at this all declared they had been only joking and each sought the honor, several being so strenuous as even to endeavor to pay before delivery.

"Don't fight over it. This is a free country and no man ain't going to get perwented buying what he wants for who, whatever is it he wants to have it for, in my liquor store," said Gus ponderously "And," he added, "I can set 'em up, too, if I want to, and nobody ain't going to stop me."

"Oh, we will have just one little drink and it will be on me," said Rangle. "Ed Jarr and me has always been little pals together!"

Whereat all present declared themselves in on these same bonds of friendship and esteem.

"I'm goin' to open a bottle of wine!" said Mr. Rangle, banging his fist down on the bar. "That's the kind of a friendly little guy I am."

Not a man blanched.

"Oh, I guess other people can open wine when it comes to that!" said Muller, sneeringly.

"At the liquor dealers' ball I opens as much as anybody," said Gus.

Indignant protests arose from all present, even Mr. Slavinski, who was casting all financial caution to the winds. The original proposition of pledging Mr. Jarr long life and happiness upon his natal day had been forgotten. The idea of paying more than those present could afford for something they did not care much for had possessed them all.

"Crack a quart on me!" cried Mr. Jarr, "and don't bring out any icebox veteran that's been standing cork up, since John L. was in his prime!"

"I got a cellar full of it!" said Gus, indignantly. "To show you, I will open a magnum."

"A magnum," corrected Mr. Jarr, but no one heeded. Gus opened one of the doors in the icebox and whispered to Elmer to go to the neighboring saloons and gather the champagne crop. He knew the temper of the crowd.

"Leave the bottles upon the counter, Gus," said Rangle grandly, "it'll show some growler rushers in this neighborhood that you cater to live ones."

"Sure," said Gus. "Elmer, don't you serve nothing but wine. I guess I run a swell place, hey? Wait till I get up my electric sign."

"I'm going to enlarge my store and get an automobile delivery wagon," said Miller, as he gracefully signed to Gus to put up another bottle.

"People what lives in glass houses should have stones thrown at them! What I care for four dollars?" said Slavinsky. "Open some more of it."

"Yes, as I was saying, I got an interest in our firm," said Mr. Jarr. "The house give me my trip to Europe, you know. I saw it made over there. It's the only stuff!"

"I beg your pardon," said a dulcet voice, "but I've sent to request you to return to your party, Mr. Jarr. The guests have all assembled!"

"Boys," said Mr. Jarr, "a very dear friend. Mr. Ladyfinger, join us, eld top!"

MARY GARDEN, the singer, was witnessing an operatic performance on one of her off nights. A famous singer was singing, and Miss Garden was asked what she thought of her. "She has a most superb figure," replied Miss Garden. "Her bodice though, is very decollete, and her skirt is very short." Then Miss Garden smiled and said: "In fact, her dress reminds me of these winter days we're having; it begins too late and it ends too early."—Ladies' Home Journal.

MRS. EDDY'S BOOKS ARE BURIED WITH HER IN CONCRETE GRAVE

Bronze Coffin in Mount Auburn Cemetery Contains Body of Church's Founder.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 27.—In a concrete grave on the shores of Lake Hacyon in Mount Auburn Cemetery, there was laid late yesterday, a bronze coffin containing the body of Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, founder of the Christian Science demonination.

On the coffin rested a bronze box, inclosing a complete set of the works of Mrs. Eddy, together with all recent Christian Science publications, while the silver plate beneath gave her name and the dates of her birth and death.

The ceremony was attended by the directors of the church and a score of its strongest supports. Judge Clifford P. Smith, the first reader of the First Church, read the ninety-first psalm, and the last two verses in Jude, which were read at the funeral, Dec. 8.

Then the grave was sealed. Later the spot will be marked by a mausoleum.

"He reproached me for not giving him Sanatogen sooner."

An incident that occurred in a doctor's office the other day. This man, so his doctor writes us, came to seek relief from nervous prostration—the usual story: nerves on the brink of starvation through overwork and business worry, poor appetite, bad digestion and consequent mental depression. The doctor gave him some common-sense advice and ordered the use of Sanatogen.

Like thousands of other doctors, he knew that for a starved, debilitated, nervous system nothing could be more beneficial, for Sanatogen embodies the very essence of nerve substance, which the hungry cells absorb as eagerly as the parched earth absorbs water. And the patient, rejuvenated by its life-giving effects, fortified by its reconstructive action, has but one regret: that of not having used it before. Could a more eloquent tribute be paid to the value of Sanatogen?

Does this episode convey any message to you? Are you in need of something to help your starved nerves—to give you fresh vigor, strength and fortitude? If so, write at once for "Our Nerves of To-morrow" a valuable and readable essay by a physician who convincingly sets forth the needs of the nervous system during times of stress. Ask your doctor about Sanatogen—ask your druggist—do something toward obtaining the benefits of Sanatogen without further delay.

CURTISS PROVES BIPLANE USEFUL FOR NAVAL WAR

SOARS FROM THE WATER

Glenn H. Curtiss' experiments at San Diego, Cal., Thursday are considered among the most important in the recent development of the aeroplane, since they are believed to prove conclusively the value of the flier to the battleship. He has telegraphed his own acount of his work to the Post-Dispatch.

By GLENN H. CURTISS.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Jan. 27.—I succeeded in flying one of my aeroplanes from the water for a distance of about two miles and landing on the water at the end of my flight. The flight was made yesterday on San Diego Bay, where I have been experimenting for 10 days, anticipating the great importance to the navy of an aeroplane that would rise from the water and land upon the water.

I had had these experiments in mind for a long time, and to try out my ideas of the subject was one of the things that brought me to Southern California. I was informed through official sources some time ago that the Secretary of the Navy believed the adaptability of the aeroplane to use in the navy would rest mainly upon its ability to get up from the surface of the water and to land safely on the water. This is my opinion, largely, also, and I have been working to that end.

Before I succeeded in getting up from the water it was necessary to do a great deal of experimenting. We tried many contrivances to give the machine floating stability and to prevent it from diving when the motor was set going. These appliances were changed, altered or discarded from day to day, but each day I felt that we were making progress. When we finished our work on North Island Wednesday I felt that we were near success, and gave directions to have everything ready for a trial at noon Thursday.

When the aeroplane was floated Thursday she rode the water easily and evenly. The motor was set going, and, driven by the propeller, the machine shot up the bay like a racing motor boat. I elevated the lifting planes and the machine rose easily. I did not want to get too high out of the water until I could see just how the machine would act with the added weight of the float and hydroplanes.

I came down easily after half a mile's flight, and turned around in the water. Giving the motor full power again, I drove the machine down the bay toward the city until she lifted again. This time I went up a hundred feet or more and made a circle. The machine acted splendidly.

I came back to a point opposite the shed on the beach and landed with perfect ease on the water.

I consider the experiments a success. Only a few unimportant details are to be worked out, then I believe I shall have a machine that will prove of lasting importance in navy use.

The machine I used on the water, and, in fact, the only one I have used at all in the experiments, was one of the newest type Curtiss biplane, one that was used in land flights at San Francisco and elsewhere. It was equipped with a long, broad, oval-shaped float beneath the main framework of the aeroplane, and several hydros surfaces placed in such positions as to give the proper angle and to enable the machine to ride the surface of the water.

I have been working to develop the aeroplane along military lines, and if the success of yesterday's experiment proves of value to the navy, and I confidently believe it will, I shall be highly gratified.

LOCAL BOWLERS GAIN A POINT FOR PET IDEA

ndividual Membership Scheme Is Sure to Be Adopted at 1912 Convention, St. Louis Tenpinners Believe.

WHILE the individual plan of membership in the American Bowling Congress was set aside until the 1912 convention, St. Louis bowlers consider the action of the delegates at Thursday's meeting as a victory. They claim that they never had an idea that the plan would be adopted at this meeting. They only wanted it recognized and are sure that something will come of it when it is again proposed for adoption at the next meeting.

At present the American Bowling Congress is composed of 81 city associations. Their fees for annual membership net the congress about $1500. It is a desire to increase this revenue that the St. Louis bowlers hit on the individual plan.

Instead of team membership, they plan to have every bowler in the country become a member of the congress. For 50 cents a membership card will be issued. According to this system, the St. Louisans claim that the bowlers will be kept in closer touch with congress matters. According to one St. Louis bowler, there would be no limit to the revenue derived from this method if it is eventually adopted, and that will certainly happen, he says.

Phillips Explains His Scheme.

For awhile, it was expected that the efforts of the St. Louis delegates to propose the plan would cause some dissension in the ranks of the delegates. M. A. Phillips, a member of the St. Louis Executive Committee, spoke first. He said that the local tenpinners were not the authors of the scheme.

After having heard of the scheme for four or five years, however, he said the St. Louis delegates decided to put the matter before the convention. He asked that the bowlers carefully consider the plan and if they liked it to adopt it. If not, to kill the amendment.

Phillips was followed by Judge Howard of Chicago, who spoke against the amendment. He regarded it as a joke and told the delegates as much. Howard, though, was followed by S. L. Drake, president of the St. Louis Tenpin Association. He told Howard where to get off.

The real peacemaker of the meeting happened in Robert W. Brown, a newspaper man of Louisville and former exalted ruler of the B.P.O.E.

He told the delegates that the scheme was not a joke, but seemed to have many good features and was entitled to grave consideration of the member. He said that the bowlers "at home" were the men who should be satisfied and that action favoring them should be taken.

After Dennis J. Sweeney of St. Louis suggested that the plan be tried by the city associations throughout the country, it was decided to postpone action on the proposed amendment until the 1912 convention.

Langtry Not for the Plan.

Secretary A. L. Langtry said he favored the individual plan, but not until some means of facilitating the handling of a tournament was made. When that time comes, he said, he would get out and boost the system, but in its present shape he was against it.

President Robert Bryson made his annual report and told the bowlers that they could assist the congress by refusing to roll on alleys not sanctioned by the A. B. C. He also asked the aid of the bowlers in obtaining more members. The secretary's and treasurer's reports were also read.

Milwaukee put in a bid for the 1912 tournament and will probably get it, as no other city has come out for the event as yet. Frank Cannon, representing one of the civic bodies of Milwaukee, invited the congress to move to his city next year. He said the bowlers were prepared to properly entertain the visiting tenpinners.

Another meeting of the delegates is scheduled for Friday at the American Hotel. The most important order of business is the election of officers. President Bryson is slated for re-election. Secretary Langtry will also retain his job, if he cares to hold it. He has come out with a statement that he will refuse the position again, but it is believed he will be persuaded to retain it. Had the individual plan been adopted, though, Langtry would have resigned.

St. Louis Men Have Only One Team in A. B. C. Running Event

If the tournament ended Thursday the members of the Budweisers would be the only St. Louis bowlers who would cut in on the one-two-three prize money. They are still second in the list of five-men teams. The Duffys are fourth and are the only other tenpinners who are included in the first five in the three divisions.

Friday is Indianapolis night at the Coliseum. President Robert Bryson of the A. B. C. will captain the Marions, one of the Indianapolis teams scheduled to shoot. He performs at 7:30 o'clock.

It is said Chicago will not put in a bid for the next convention.

Jimmy Smith, considered the champion bowler of the world, makes his inaugural appearance in the tournament Friday at 12:30 o'clock. He will shoot in the doubles paired with E. Gebhard. Smith formerly was of New York, but is now included in the Buffalo delegation. He will perform in the singles at 4:15 o'clock.

Robert W. Brown of Louisville was cheered for five minutes after his talk to the delegates Thursday. It certainly had the right ring to it.

The Prize Committee reported. It has decided to award 82 five-men team prizes, 170 two-men team prizes, 342 individual prizes and 25 all-event prizes.

The all-event prizes will amount to $1000 and will be deducted from the different events.

First prize in the five-men event will be worth $750. The seventy-ninth, eighteenth, eighty-first and eighty-second prizes are worth $26.

The winner of the all-event prize will receive $150. Six prizes of $15 each will also be included in the list.

Milwaukee has certainly made a good showing here in the hope of getting the 1912 tournament. Twenty-eight five-men teams from the North are entered in the tourney.

Slow Ball Pitcher's Day Now Thing of the Past

"When I broke into the big League," said Christy yesterday, "Win Mercer, Clarke Griffith, Red Donohue and other pitchers were getting away with their games and each one was depending upon a slow ball to a large extent. Billy Reidy and Dusty Rhoades followed them, but look over the list of pitchers in the two big leagues today and you will not find a single pitcher who is noted for his slow ball. There may be some who have a floater in their repertory, but they do not depend upon it to any extent.

"Today the big league pitcher must have speed. The majority of the big league pitchers are large men, but large or small, they must be able to put steam on the ball or they go back to the minors. In fact, when a big league scout reports some minor league find to his employer, the first question that the latter asks is, 'Has he any smoke?'

"I have reasoned it out that the slow ball pitcher scarcely ever won his games by small scores, and the clubs in the days when slow ball pitchers thrived usually had a lot of batters who won their games by big scores. It did not cause much damage if five or six runs were scored against a club that owned a slow ball pitcher if that team was able to go out and score seven or eight runs. But nowadays the scores are smaller and the man with the floater finds it difficult to stand the pace."

Kansas Retains Sunday Baseball.

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 27.—Sunday baseball in Kansas was given a new lease on life when the House of the Legislature went on record yesterday by a vote of 63 to 58 against any further laws to prohibit the game. More than half the members took part in the debate in which the Bible was quoted, sermons delivered and arguments against bill by those who favor the sport.

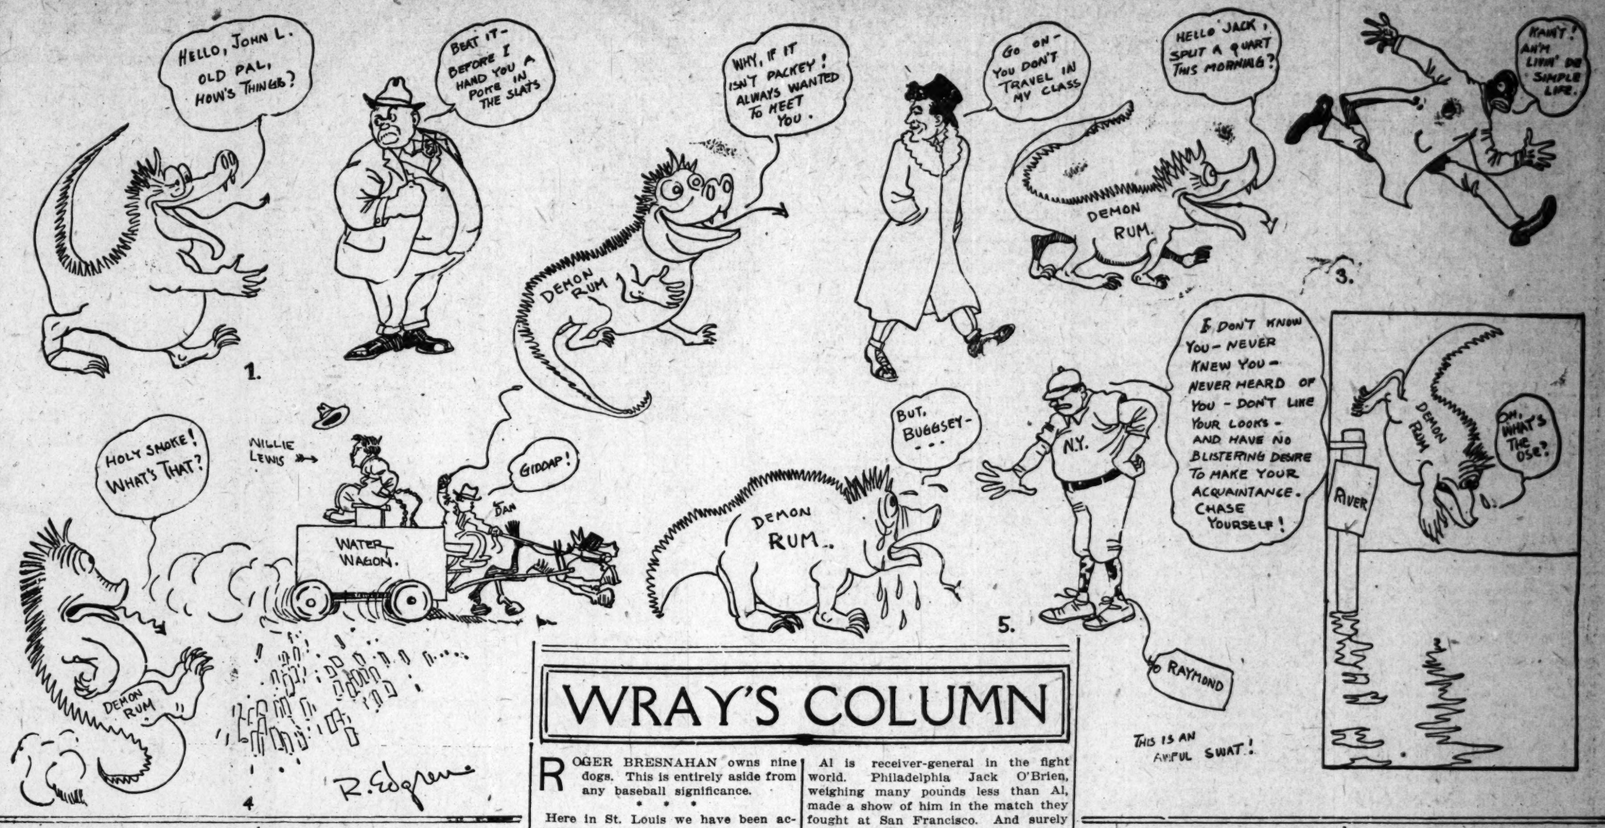

George Cones of Meade County, who introduced the bill, read the commandments to show why the bill should become a law.

DIGGER STANLEY WILL GET FIRST TRYOUT TONIGHT

By ROBERT EDGREN,
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—The classics of the ring may have another chapter added tonight, when Frankie Burns and "Digger" Stanley meet at the National Sporting Club. Digger Stanley is England's bantamweight champion. Burns is the greatest little fighter of his weight in America. He has beaten Johnny Coulon.

In England the bantamweight limit is 118 pounds. Here it is generally accepted as 116. Stanley agreed to split the difference, and the boys are weighing in at 117.

The "Digger" has been fighting in England for about nine years. He classes, across the sea, about like Abe Attell in America. He has all the craft of an old-timer, and he is at his best. Digger has been training near Philadelphia, and those who have seen him report that he's another Jim Driscoll. If he is as fast and clever as Jim he will be a popular boy in our club circles.

As for Frankie Burns, he is a youngster beside Stanley, but he has fought often and is little behind the Englishman in ring experience. Burns has a square fighting jaw, an aggressive eye and a habit of tearing in and mixing every second of the time. He has a cleverness of his own and a two-handed style of fighting that makes it hard to stand him off. Stanley may try to make it a clever, long-range fight. Burns will be all for close quarters and hot action. The international character of this bout makes it interesting, of course, but even without that, it would be one of the best of the season.

SWITCH MADE IN SOCCER SHOW AT ATHLETIC PARK

A change will be made in the St. Louis Soccer League schedule for next Sunday. The St. Leos will meet the Columbus club in the second game, which will be the afternoon's feature. The original schedule had these teams booked for the first game, but as it will be one of the biggest games of the season, members of the league decided it best to reverse the order. The Innisfails will meet the Blue Bells in the first game.

Juarez Meet a Fixture.

EL PASO, Tex., Jan. 27.—"The racetrack at Juarez is there to stay," said Col. Nat Winn, the general manager of the Juarez Jockey Club last night, in commenting on the story published in San Francisco papers recently that the Juarez plant was to be abandoned and a new plant constructed at Tia Juana. "The present 100 days' meeting will be run off as scheduled," continued Mr. Winn, "and there is a probability that we will extend racing into April."

Robison's Successor Is Named.

Following the resignation of President M. Stanley Robison of the Cardinals, as chairman of the Rules Committee of the National League, President Lynch announces John Whalen, treasurer of the New York club as Mr. Robison's successor. Mr. Robison is on a pleasure trip to Panama.

NEW YORK MEN ASSUME LEAD IN TENPIN TOURNEY

COLISEUM, Jan. 27.—Jimmy Smith, formerly pinboy of Brooklyn and New York City, considered the greatest tenpin bowler of the present time, was responsible for the high two-man team mark of the A. B. C. tournament when, with E. Gebhard of the Floss Colts of Buffalo, he registered a 1224 total Friday at noon.

Smith shot great tenpins. He started off with a 194 game, but came back with 226 and finished up with 253. In the third game Smith made six consecutive strikes, but failed to hit the 1—3 right in his seventh frame and left up a trio of maples. He picked them off and in the final frame cracked out a "turkey," or three more strikes, for the full count.

The former high two-man team mark of the tournament was 1209, held by Riehle and Gardell of Cincinnati. Gebhard's scores were 156, 225 and 170.

ST. TERESAS IN DANGER OF HAVING LEAD CUT DOWN

The St. James team will make an effort to cut down the lead of the St. Teresas in the St. Louis U. Park League Sunday. The former eleven has improved greatly since the last meeting of the teams and is expected to defeat the Grand avenue aggregation. In the other game the Duwells play the Immaculate Conception team.

WRAY'S COLUMN

* * *

Here in St. Louis we have been accustomed to believe that Umpire Klem was about the best in the National League. It is certain that he pleased local fans by his accurate work. And yet here is what Chicago thinks about the gentleman:

"Umpire Bill Klem has signed his contract with President Tom Lynch of the National League again for next summer. Many players around the country will be sorry to hear it, and it may be that several members of the Cub team will be among that number."

* * *

The Credit Side.

IT'S one of the queer features of baseball that, while every fan recalls the mistakes umpires make that cost the home team games, they seem to forget entirely any balance of luck in the opposite direction that might be considered a compensation. As a matter of fact, umpires are about as often mistaken in a favorable manner as they are in a way that hurts.

To err is human, and to make it up to the injured one seems to be one of the first principles.

* * *

Too Few Players.

BAN JOHNSON'S investigation of Cuban baseball should not be taken seriously, as far as any prospect of the island's annexation to our big league world is concerned. Ban is thoroughly wise to the fact that 16 teams are even now too many to make evenly balanced races possible. Cuba has several men who might break into the major league game, but there are comparatively few.

The present problem is not one of expansion, but rather the opposite. With the best intentions in the world and a pocketbook full of money, there is no guarantee that any club owner will be able to put a first division club in the race.

* * *

None to Beat Champion.

JUDGING from Jack Johnson's utterances for and against, there seems to be no immediate prospect of his ever hooking up in that match with Sam Langford. From the present outlook, Al Kaufman is the gentleman that will be given first chance at the negro champion. It's unfortunate. Al doesn't size up with the big negro in any particular, and if he fights him within a year will surely lose all the hopes he ever nursed.

Jim Corbett is on record as saying that he doesn't see anything in the catalogue of Johnson's pugilistic accomplishments that entitles him to be considered anything but an ordinary fighter. But you'll have to look a long time at Kaufman's points to figure him any better.

Al is receiver-general in the fight world. Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, weighing many pounds less than Al, made a show of him in the match they fought at San Francisco. And surely O'Brien does not class with Johnson as a fighter.

* * *

Up to Old Man Time.

THE chances now are that the big black will be cut down by Father Time rather than by the exceptional ability of his next opponent Langford is a good little man. But no fighter of his caliber can give 35 or 40 pounds away to a better man with any hope of success.

At that you'll not find anybody willing to risk anything on the proposition.

Scouts Can Make a Team.

IF Robert Lee Hedges should happen to land McCloskey as a "side kick" to Fred Lake in the scouting department the St. Louis club will surely be the best-equipped team in America in the "raw-material" department. Lake first came into prominence through his success in landing a fine bunch of young men for the Boston Americans. This was directly responsible for his displacing of Maguire as manager of that club. That he failed as a leader is in no sense a detriment to his judgment of baseball players and there is little doubt that he will comb the Eastern baseball situation thoroughly in his new capacity.

McCloskey also has a reputation for being able to tell the future greats in the rough. He gave the world Koney and in itself that act will be a sufficient recommendation. But beside Koney he found a number of other men while with the then tail-end local club that convinces one as to his ability.

With two such men working for the team the Browns ought to be able to build up within less than the regulation period of three years.

Mr. Mike Donlin's annual advertising feature is finished. Mike at last admits that he not only doesn't expect to play, but that he doubts if he can.

MUSIC LESSONS FOR IGORROTES IS WOMAN'S PLAN

Rich Widow Believes She Has Found a Way to Civilize Dog Eating Savages.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Fordham is to be invaded by a score or more of dog-eating Igorrotes from Samar, in the Philippines, if Mrs. George S. Wilkins, a wealthy widow, who lives at the Hotel St. Francis, has her way, says the American today. Mrs. Wilkins hopes to civilize her guests by means of music, of which, she says, they are passionately fond.

Mrs. Wilkins, who, previous to her marriage six years ago, was the Baroness Von Groyss of Vienna, has a large income from the estate of her father. Her favorite diversions are music and travel. She first became interested in the Igorrotes at the St. Louis World's Fair and was a constant visitor to the village reproduced there. On the last day of the fair a reception was held in the Igorrote village, and Mrs. Wilkins attended.

She was greatly impressed by the brightness and intelligence of a 17-year-old boy named Penossan and undertook to teach him the cake walk. The boy was an apt pupil and after 20 minutes' instruction outdid his teacher. A visitor took a snapshot of the couple and later sent several prints to Mrs. Wilkins.

"What I saw of the Igorrotes at that time," said Mrs. Wilkins, "determined me to try an experiment. I intend, unless the United States Government objects, to bring about 30 of them, men and women, to New York very soon. I want to get a large house up near Fordham, put in two or three pianos and other instruments and give music lessons to each of the islanders.

"It is astonishing what a quick ear an Igorrote has for music and how fond he is of it. I believe that more of these savages can be converted by music than by missionaries."

RADIUM WATER NEAR MUSKOGEE

MUSKOGEE, Ok., Jan. 27.—An artesian well, flowing thousands of gallons a day, has been brought in on Brushy Mountain, eight miles from Muskogee, and an analysis of the water shows it to be identical with the celebrated radium water at Claremore, Ok. Plans are now making to cap the well and pipe it to Muskogee. There is sufficient pressure in the well to deliver the water in this city, where it is proposed to build a big sanitarium and exploit the water.

For many years the Indians have told of the wonderful medicinal properties of the springs on Brusy Mountain, but no attempt was made to commercialize the water until the artesian well was opened.

21 CURTAIN CALLS FOR STRAUS' NEW OPERA IN DRESDEN

PRETTY STAGE PICTURES

Special Cablegram to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

DRESDEN, Saxony, Jan. 27.—Richard Straus' "Der Rosenkavalier" is the composer's answer to Emperor William's complaint, "Why don't you write popular music?"

The 21 curtain calls which followed the conclusion of the third act showed that Straus has found the popular ear.

The Americans who attended the first performance last night—most of whom joined Consul-General Gaffney's dinner party afterward, or one of the big American parties at the Hotel de L'Europe—unanimously agree that "Der Rosenkavalier" shows Straus' genius in an entirely new light. No dance this coming season will be complete without the fascinating waltz which is the motif of the second act; just as every ballad concert will be expected to conclude with the charming Mozartian lover's song of the first act.

Old Notes Creeps In.

Occasionally the old, noisy Straus was allowed to peep out, as at the beginning of the overture to the last act, when the terrific crash with which the overture opens took completely by surprise the audience, which was still standing about or peering through opera glasses at the royal box, where Princess John George of Saxony sat in royal state.

Those who expected suggestive music were disappointed, for while the first act, with its Heibein pictures of a women's dressing room with love passages between a noble of middle age and a young admirer at sunrise, might easily have been indelicate, they were not. On the contrary the first act was the most successful of all, the audience literally yelling applause when the curtain fell. The second act, with a delicate suggestion of old Dresden china carefully harmonized with porcelain tints in the arrangement of the people on the stage by Germany's most famous regisseur, Max Reinhardt, was probably, taken by itself, the most exquisite, especially as it was accompanied by a captivating waltz.

Third Act Farcical.

The third act falls below the level of the others. The action is farcical and the music certainly less attractive, though Reinhardt again lent his skill to produce wonderful effects of people massed in the background.

The greatest personal triumph of the evening belongs to Margaret Siems, who in the part of a middle-aged peeress surrendering the field of her amorous victories to a younger rival, again and again held the house breathless with delight.

Richard Strauss was extremely nervous about the result. He sat far back in a box next to the royal inclosure, but joined in the applause of Margaret Siems.

The German critics will accuse Strauss of debasing his orchestral genius to mere popular prettiness. But the public will applaud.

SULTAN ORDERS INQUIRY INTO ABDUL HAMID PLOT

Investigation of Records of Ex-Ruler's Guards and More Complete Isolation Planned.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 27. — The Government has appointed a secret commission to inquire into the method of guarding the ex-Sultan, as a result of a recent disclosure of a plot whereby Abdul Hamid was to be brought back to the Turkish throne. The plot was disclosed by the leading newspaper of Smyrna. From the article it appears that the ex-Sultan has a large number of friends who have been doing some underground work in preparation of an Abdul Hamil coupe.

The secret commission will investigate the records of all persons taking part in the guarding of Abdul Hamid. It will also appoint additional guards. The Government is determined to prevent a renewal of the old regime.

It is generally feared that Abdul Hamid is a dangerous man. He is very insidious, an expert in intrigues and, while in prison, has nothing else to do. Those who advocated his expulsion to some very distant island say that the Government will have to do that finally.

TRAIN ACQUAINTANCES ARE DOUBLE WEDDING PRINCIPALS

Two Men Woo and Win Girls, Who Were Their Seatmates, Before Journey's End.

MENOMINEE, Mich., Jan. 27.—When Winfred W. Griffith took the train at Kaukauna, Wis., he had no thought of getting married. Miss Ella Martin sat down beside him, and soon promised to marry him, although she had never seen him before.

James G. McGuire boarded the train at Green Bay, and at Oconto, Miss Gertrude Calson came in and sat beside him. He liked her so well that he made her promise to keep the place by his side for the rest of life's journey.

Twentieth Century Robber Barons

Thirty banks have been robbed in Kansas recently and $100,000 taken. State Bank Commissioner Dolley has a curious theory of how these depredations are conducted by Twentieth Century Robber Barons who go forth with their retainers at night in modern high-power automobiles, commit their depredations, and return to their strongholds in Nebraska and Oklahoma before dawn. Post-Dispatch's Complete Daily Record of Markets and Finance

STOCK PRICES ARE HIGHER IN QUIET MARKET

Trading Professional at All Stages; London Values Firm.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.

Stock prices drifted to the high point of the day in the late market, under the influence of the report that the Southern Pacific had sold $25,000,000 in bonds to Paris bankers, who had taken an option on an additional $25,000,000. No official confirmation of the report was obtainable. The market closed quiet at the advance.

Trading lapsed into dullness in the second hour and prices moved irregularly. There was little feature to the market and professionals continued the only traders. Some of the specialties widened their gains, but without effect on the general list. The bond market was irregular.

Stocks opened steady and higher in Wall street Friday, following London's lead, where prices showed gains of ¼ to ⅝ of a point. Trading was only moderately active. Some of the specialties showed wide changes.

Commission houses are taking little part in the speculation, the buying being entirely professional. The coming decision in the Government's dissolution suit against the Union and Southern Pacific makes traders wary. After that decision is out of the way the "street" will turn to talking of the Tobacco and Oil cases.

Traders are divided in their opinion as to what the decision is against the Union Pacific. The chances are that prices will rise. The discussion of the case has been such that it is pretty well discounted. Again, an adverse decision would mean the distribution of the Union Pacific treasury assets to its stockholders. At present market prices for these, authorities say, Union Pacific would pay out about $250 per share, consequently insiders are not worried much over the coming decision.

Money rates continue easy, and the reduction in the Bank of England's discount rate indicates improving conditions abroad. This is important, as in the next few months we will probably be compelled to look to Europe for large supplies of capital.

FOUR JURORS FOR WRESTLER'S TRIAL ALREADY CHOSEN

Examination of talesmen for a jury to try John Burton of Alton on a charge of strangling two men to death was resumed Friday at Edwardsville, with the prospect that the jury would be completed before the day was done. At the session Thursday four jurors were picked.

Former State Senator John J. Brenholt of Alton, Burton's lawyer, expressed confidence that his client would be acquitted.

"Under the Illinois statute," he said, "one may go to the length of taking life in the defense of his property, as well as in the defense of his own life. We will show that Burton's companions were trying to take the wages that he had earned as a plumber at Marine, and that in preventing this he strangled them.

"Burton says that if there had been a light in the room he probably would not have killed the men.

"He has such exceptional strengh that he unwittingly took two lives. He had one of the men's heads between his knees and the other he caught by the throat. After they ceased struggling he did not know they were dead until he returned to the house with a neighbor and struck a light.

"We will be able to show both self-defense and the defense of property, and I believe the jury will acquit Burton."

Burton killed Leo Wentz, a Marine (Ill.) saloon keeper, and Louis Welbracht, a chance acquaintance, last August. They were spending the night in a vacant house owned by Wentz' mother, after drinking all evening. Burton, 6 feet 2 inches tall and an amateur wrestler of local fame, weighs 225 pounds, and is a young man of unusual physique. His father, George Burton, is an Alton councilman.

In the examination of talesmen, questions were directed for the most part toward their belief in circumstantial evidence. Burton is the only survivor of the tragedy, and his story will be that of the only eyewitness.

The only other evidence will be circumstantial. In the indictment Burton is charged only with manslaughter, but State's Attorney Gilliham says he expects to prove that there was no element of self-defense in the killing, and if he succeeds in satisfying the jury of this it may return a verdict of first-degree murder.

Canadian Pacific and Minneapolis & St. Paul and Sault Ste Marie were up a point each, St. Paul ⅝ and Atchison and Union Pacific each ⅜. International Harvester gained ⅞. The copper shares were heavy.

Opening gains were increased slightly and the list held steady at a level well over last night's closing, with the exception of the copper shares, which were noticeably weak on poor trade reports. The largest gains were among inactive issues, International Harvester rising 2 points, St. Joseph and Grand Island, Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg 4 and Wells-Fargo 8.

Operations during the morning were much restricted, but there was a decided undercurrent of firmness, all of the important issues ruling a sharp fraction above yesterday's closing, with more substantial improvement in a few selected stocks. Bethlehem Steel was particularly strong in connection with talk of introduction of new interests in the corporation and proposed enlargement of the plant. International Harvester was strong on the proposed reciprocity agreement with Canada, which promised to open a larger market for the company's products. There was renewed bullish activity in Norfolk & Western, which sent it up 2 points to 106⅝. Other coalers, however, were without essential change. Bonds were steady.

There was scarcely a movement of more than ⅛ in the principal stocks during the noon hour, with the exception of Norfolk & Western, which made a further advance to 107¼.

Gradually higher levels were reached in the afternoon, though the buying continued of a very limited character. The forecast of tomorrow's bank statement showing a probable cash gain of over $11,000,000, helped the upward movement. Atchison, Reading and Baltimore & Ohio ruled about a point above yesterday's closing.

LOWER CABLES GIVE COTTON BEARS SLIGHT ADVANTAGE

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 3@5 points in response to lower cables than expected and further private advices reporting a less active trade in Manchester. Local traders were sellers at the initial decline, but there appeared to be sufficient demand from prominent bull and trade interests to hold the market within a point or two of the opening figures during the early trading. There was a tendency here to believe that the decline in the market for bar silver might have influenced the falling off in Lancashire trade with the Far East, following the recent active business.

This view of the foreign situation did not inspire a great deal of selling, however, and the market during the late forenoon was very quiet, with price holding steady around the opening figures. The closing was irregular. Spot quiet; middling uplands, 14.90c, nominal. Estimated receipts in the ports today, 31,000 bales, against 50,246 bales last week and 31,755 bales last year. For the week, 200,000 bales, against 222,495 bales last week and 114,649 bales last year. Today's receipts in New Orleans, 6386 bales, against 1564 bales last year.

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 27.—Closing—Cotton: Spot, moderate business done; prices 2 points lower; American middling fair, 8.48d; good middling, 8.14d; middling, 8.02d; low middling, 7.82d; good ordinary, 7.56d; ordinary, 7.31d. The sales of the day were 7000 bales, of which 300 were for speculation and export, and included 6300 bales American. PANAMA, Jan. 27.—The Assembly yesterday approved a contract entered into by the President and Anglo-German syndicate for the construction of a railroad from Puerto Pines to the interior of Darien. The company, it is reported, intends to develop the land which has been granted to it for the purpose of establishing colonies.

Local securities were again in demand at the early Stock Exchange session, United Railways preferred selling at $43 and the common in new high territory on the movement at $12. Both stocks reflected good buying orders in the market.

The telephone issues came in for some good buying, and scored rather sensational advances on rumors that the merger of the independent companies is nearing completion. Kansas City Home Telephone jumped 5 points above its old high at $117, and was wanted at the top figure. Kinloch Telephone gained to $110.

National Bank of Commerce was the laggard in the list, dropping off a full point at $210, and offers at this figure. Title Trust was firm at $85. The bond market showed a steady range of prices throughout.

SON-IN-LAW HALES MOTHER OF WIFE TO ALTON COURT

She Is Under $100 Bond for Removing Effects From His Home.

Mrs. John Diamond of Upper Alton didn't want her daughter to marry William Roloff. She favored the suit of Albert Lohr and took him as a boarder at her home after Roloff and the daughter eloped, to show where her sympathy lay.

It was this situation which led to quarrels between Roloff and his bride and to a fight between Roloff and Lohr. Mrs. Roloff left her husband and went to her mother's home to live Monday. While Roloff was at work Mrs. Diamond carted away from his home a bedroom set, stove, silverware and clock. She left pinned to the front door a note saying her daughter, Mamie, was not to be held responsible for this. "I did it myself," the note said.

Roloff produced the note in evidence before Justice Ford Thursday afternoon, after he had caused his mother-in-law's arrest on a charge of grand larceny. Mrs. Diamond admitted that she had taken the furniture. She said she thought it was as much her daughter's as Roloff's, but Justice Ford took a different view. He found her guilty of grand larceny, and bound her over to the grand jury under $100 bond.

Mrs. Diamond was not able to supply the bond at once, but Justice Ford was too gallant to have her locked up. He told her to get a bondsman Friday, and she did.

Roloff is 19 years old, and his bride 18. They eloped last July.

NATIVE CATTLE—Arrivals were 1200 head. A portion of the receipts were billed through to the East so this left only a small supply on sale. A few loads of fairly good steers were available, selling up to $6.10. The steer market was generally steady. Cows and heifers inclined to dullness and buyers did not take hold as freely as they might have done. Veal calves were steady with a top of $9.25. Stock cattle trade quiet, but unchanged.

WHEAT MARKET IS LOWER ON HEAVY SELLING

Traders raided the wheat market Friday and prices sold lower all along the line. There was liquidation of some weak long accounts on stop-loss orders, which helped along the decline.

News from all directions was bearish. Rain fell in Oklahoma, Missouri, Kansas and the Ohio Valley, with more indicated in other sections of the winter wheat belt where needed. Argentine shipments were three times as heavy as last year, and official estimates on the world's wheat shipments for the week were 14,000,000 bu, compared to 10,704,000 bu last year. Australia and India also reported liberal shipments.

Cables were also weak and lower. There was some covering of March contracts in Liverpool on light American receipts there, totaling only 8000 bu. The buying was not sufficient to check the bearish trend of the foreign market.

Liverpool spot wheat closed unchanged to ½d lower, futures ⅜@⅝d lower. Spot corn ¼d lower, futures ¼d up to ½d lower. Paris wheat ½c lower, futures 1c lower. Antwerp wheat unchanged. Berlin ½c lower. Budapest ¾c up.

Broomhall reported the Argentine wheat market easy, with business slow and demand quiet. Arrivals from the interior large and quality satisfactory. Corn market is firm with an upward tendency. Arrivals from interior small, but quality satisfactory.

Argentine shipments for the week showed:

	This Wk.	Last Wk.	Last Yr.
Wheat	3,860,000	1,264,000	952,000
Corn	196,000	586,000	358,000

Wheat shipments, Jan. 1 to date, 5,424,000 bu, against 1,862,000 bu last year. Corn shipments, 4,990,000 bu, against 1,609,000 bu last year.

Indian wheat shipments this week, 1,352,000 bu, against 552,000 bu last week and 244,000 bu last year.

Australian wheat shipments for the week were, 2,168,000 bu, against 2,176,000 bu last week and 2,608,000 bu last year.

The bulls base their position on a possible early crop scare and hopes of a heavy falling off in receipts in the Northwest, but as yet the Northwest movement shows no signs of lessening. This seems to give the lie to certain bull interests who have consistently asserted the spring wheat crop was 25,000,000 bu below the Government's final estimate.

Minneapolis wheat cars today totaled 316, against 295 last week and 390 last year. Winnipeg had 49, against 53 last week and 139 last year. Duluth had 55, against 33 last week and 50 last year.

Kansas City wheat receipts today, 64,800 bu, against 69,300 bu last year. Shipments, 61,200 bu, against 68,250 bu last year.

Local wheat receipts today, 37,400 bu, or 24 cars local, 10 through; last year, 53,421 bu, or 654 sacks, 45 cars local, 7 through.

Local corn receipts today 105,600 bu, or 80 cars local, 8 through; last year, 150,700 bu, or 127 cars local, 10 through.

Local oats receipts today, 39,100 bu, or 14 cars local, 9 through; last year, 84,800 bu, or 37 cars local, 16 through.

Bartlett Frazier's wire said:

"Wheat has had a break of 4½c per bushel during the past ten days, and even at the decline the cash situation seems heavier than ever. It frequently happens that holders will not sell on a strong market but do on a weak market. This applies not only to speculative contracts, but more particularly to owners of cash property. The fact that cash wheat is being pressed for sale in Southwestern markets rather confutes the theory of damage to the growing crop, for certainly if this belief were well grounded the movement from first hands should decrease rather than increase as it has been doing recently."

Broomhall estimates the world's shipments of wheat for the week, exclusive of North America at 11,200,000 bu. Last week's shipments, America included were 11,072,000 bu, against 8,992,000 bu last year.

Bradstreet's export figures for the week showed:

	Wheat and Flour	Corn.
This week	2,132,000	1,831,000
Last week	2,527,000	2,210,000
Last year	3,118,000	1,879,000
Two years ago	3,045,000	1,315,000

Wheat exports July 1 to date, 72,072,000 bu, against 98,734,000 bu last year, decreased 26,662,000 bu. Corn shipments, 14,532,000 bu, against 14,080,000 bu last year, increase 452,000 bu.

Corn was steady despite the weakness in wheat. Weather was mild over the belt, with some moisture, which may interfere with deliveries. The demand is not keen and traders say the market was overbought on the recent big bulge.

Pontoon Peacock Is Dead.

CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—Robert Peacock, known among veterans of the Civil War as Pontoon Peacock, died yesterday after a year's illness at his residence here. Canadian Pacific was in demand and advanced 1¼ points, while the rest of the list made further gains during the early trading. JOHN D. JR. TAGS MEMBERS OF HIS CLASS AT BANQUET

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—The 180 members of the Rockefeller Bible class, holding their yearly dinner at a fashionable Fifth avenue restaurant last night, drank mineral water and wore tags with their names scrawled upon them in the handwriting of John D. Rockefeller Jr. This was Rockefeller's plan, to insure a general acquaintance.

The millionaire leader himself wore a tag on which was written in bold letters "Rockefeller." He made a speech, in which he decried the tendency which he said most seem to have of holding back kind words while their friends are living.

"It is the common fashion," he said, "to reserve the flowers until they are laid upon the casket. It is a heartless fashion." He wound up his speech with a story of a fat man who slid down a slippery hill in Albany with a woman sitting on his chest.

BILL WILL ALLOW SUNDAY DRINKS IN ST. LOUIS HOTELS

Citizens' Defense Committee Plans Measure to Permit and Regulate Traffic.

CUT DOWN SALOON TOTAL

Proposition Is to Eliminate Worst Places by Raising License Fee to $1000.

The Citizens' Defense Committee will ask the Legislature to enact a new liquor license law that will give hotels the right, on payment of $800 a year in addition to the regular dramshop license fee, to serve drinks on Sundays to guests at meals and in their rooms.

The new law proposes to raise saloon licenses in this State to $1000 a year and will restrict the number of saloons to one for each town or township in the country and one for each 500 inhabitants in the cities.

Bill to Be Framed.

The committee made this decision Thursday night after hearing the recommendation of the special committee which had been appointed to look into the dramshop regulations in other states and countries and report what in its opinion would be the best regulative laws for this State.

The Citizens' Defense Committee instructed its special committee Thursday night to draft its recommendations at once into the form of an act of the legislature and as soon as this is done that body will be asked to pass the measure.

The committee believes that by raising the dramshop license to $1000 a year it will force the lower class of saloons out of business and that only those of the higher class would survive. This, it is believed, would reduce the number of saloons in St. Louis from 2500 to 1400 and would elevate the whole tone of the saloon business; would make it so profitable that the city could auction the licenses for the better paying saloons to the highest bidders.

By licensing the lid clubs and keeping a closer watch over them, the committee believes the fradulent organizations would go out of business. Real business and social clubs are not to be interfered with under the new law.

Limit to Hotel Licenses.

By closing the hotel bars on Sunday and charging a license fee of $800 a year for serving drinks to guests at table and in rooms, the committee believes that only the largest and best hotels would take out such licenses and this would end an evil that now obtains in many hotels.

In getting information for its report, the special committee examined the statutes of 22 states and of Canada, England and France and the ordinances governing saloons in 20 cities. The best features were culled from all of them and embodied in the proposed law.

MOTHER DIES AT PARTY TO HONOR WEDDING OF 2 GIRLS

At First Thought to Have Fainted Over Joy at Prospective Double Nuptials.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—While standing among 75 guests, her face radiant with happiness over the honor being paid her two daughters, soon to be married, Mrs. Emma Ege of Hopewell, N. J., 62 years old, was stricken with apoplexy last night and fell dead.

Miss Rene Ege is engaged to Irvin D. Vandyke, and her sister, Nellie, to Henry Haynes Wolfe. The weddings were set for next Wednesday evening and friends gathered last night to give them a domestic shower.

"I am so glad. It was a complete surprise to the girls," and fell. A physician was summoned, as it was thought Mrs. Ege had fainted from excess of joy.

In view of the fact that several hundred invitations to the double wedding have been sent out, it is believed the ceremonies will be performed on the day selected.

Girls Beat Purse Snatcher.

Miss Emma Haenssel, 16 years old, was chatting with two girl friends in front of her home, 3120 South Seventh street, Thursday night, when a youth accosted her and tried to snatch her purse from her hand. She held to the purse while her companions screamed for the police. The robber fled empty handed.

YOUNG SOCIETY WOMAN GOES TO PARTY IN BATHING SUIT

Affair Itself Was Great Surprise for No One Knew Who Was to Be Hostess.

A young society woman in a costly bathing suit was one of the surprises at a mystic party Thursday night which was in itself the greatest surprise that Edwardsville has had this year.

Miss Charlotte Nelson, daughter of N. O. Nelson, president of the N. O. Nelson Manufacturing Co. of St. Louis and vice-president of the First National Bank of Edwardsville, wore the bathing suit, which was one she had worn at the beach last summer.

The party was held at the home of Mrs. George W. Meyer, whose husband is a banker. None of the many women who were there knew where she was going when she left home. The invitations gave no hint of where the party was to be. They said simply: "Be ready at 2:30 p. m., and my driver will be at your door and bring you to my home."

RULES FOR SHIPS IN THE PANAMA CANAL PUBLISHED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—A startling reminder of the nearness of the opening of the Panama Canal to traffic is afforded by the latest issue of the Canal Record, just received here, which contains in the form of an appendix or report of the laws governing navigation of the Panama Canal.

The regulations follow those in force in the Sues Canal and prescribe with minute detail the lights to be carried by all craft, signals to be given by whistle and otherwise and courses to be held by approaching watercraft.

These laws were prepared on the Isthmus and were approved by Secretary Dickinson Dec. 31 last. The need for them has already become apparent, owing to the growing use by shipping of the approaches to the canal.

CONTRACT NOT TO MARRY IS AGAINST PUBLIC POLICY

The keeping of her promise not to marry, and the rejection of several suitors, did not gain for Miss Margaret E. Murphy of Webster Groves the family homestead promised by her father. Special Judge Kiskaddon acting for Judge McElhinny in the Clayton Circuit Court held Thursday that an agreement between two persons that one of them should not marry is against public policy and is void.

The question was presented in a partition suit filed by Thomas J. Rafferty and his wife, Della, against Miss Murphy, who is Mrs. Rafferty's sister. Michael Murphy, father of the sisters, left the farm and homestead by will to his wife, who later deeded it to Mrs. Rafferty. Miss Murphy set up an agreement made with her father by which she contracted not to get married and to take care of her parents during their life, in return for which she was to receive the homestead.

Mrs. Louis Girard testified that she knew of the agreement between her father and Miss Murphy, and that at the time Margaret was young and had several chances to be married. Judge Kiskaddon ordered the property divided between the heirs, and that the costs be borne equally by both sides.

The St. Louis shoe shipments for the week ending Jan. 14 were 27,210 cases. Number of pairs of shoes made by the St. Louis shoe houses was 426,332 pairs.
